OF PLEADERS AND MUKHTARS

6 The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act as to the following matters (namely) —

Power to make rules as to qualifications, &c., of pleaders and Mukhtars

(a) the qualifications, admission and certificates of proper persons to be pleaders of the subordinate Courts and of the revenue offices situate within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction, and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter "in respect of which the Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926, is not in force" * of such Court,

(b) the qualifications, admission and certificates of proper persons to be mukhtars of the subordinate Courts and, in the case of a High Court not established by Royal Charter "in respect of which the Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926, is not in force" * of such Court,

(c) the fees to be paid for the examination and admission of such person and

(d) suspension and dismissal of such pleaders and mukhtars.

Publication of rules All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law

Provided that, in the case of rules made by a High Court not established by Royal Charter, such rules have been previously approved by the Local Government

Notes—The word proper implies that apart from educational and other qualifications that may be insisted on there may be other conditions laid down in order to entitle a person to be admitted as a pleader and the expression 'to be' denotes that his continuance as a pleader may be made dependent on such conditions

40 C W N 377

7 On the admission, under section 6, of any person as a pleader or mukhtar, the High Court shall cause a certificate, signed by such officer as the Court, from time to time appoints in this behalf, to be issued to such person, authorizing him to practise up to the end of the current year in the Courts, and, in the case of a pleader, also the revenue offices specified therein

Certificates to pleaders and mukhtars

At the expiration of such period, the holder of the certificate, if he desires to continue to practise, shall, subject to any rules consistent with this Act which may, from time to time be made by the High Court in this behalf be entitled to have his certificate renewed by the Judge of the District Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction he then ordinarily practises, or by such officer as the High Court, from time to time appoints in this behalf

On every such renewal the certificate then in possession of such pleader or mukhtar shall be cancelled and returned by such Judge or officer

Every certificate so renewed shall be signed by such Judge or officer, and shall continue in force up to the end of the current year

Every Judge or officer so renewing a certificate shall notify such renewal to the High Court

Provided that on the admission as a pleader of any person who has been previously entered as a vakil or attorney on the roll of a High Court established by Royal Charter, the High Court may in its discretion issue to such person a certificate authorising him to practise permanently in the Courts and in the offices specified therein, and a certificate so issued shall not require to be renewed under this section †

Notes—An application for renewal of certificate must be treated as an application for admission where the Court has to see whether the applicant is a proper person to be an officer of the Court and to be trusted with the interest of suitors. 11 P 365=A I R 1931 Pat 369=12 P L T 773 (F B) Under R 13 High Court has not delegated to District Judges power to suspend practitioners pending receipt of their renewal certificates. 133 Ind Cas 522=54 M 574=60 M L J 588=A I R 1931 Mad 688

8 Every pleader holding a certificate issued under section 7 may apply to be enrolled in any Court or revenue office mentioned therein and situate within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court by which he has been admitted, and, subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the High Court or the Chief Controlling Revenue authority may, from time to time, make in this behalf, the presiding Judge or officer shall enrol him accordingly, and thereupon he may appear plead and act in such Court or office and in any Court or Revenue office subordinate thereto.

Appellate Jurisdiction—The words 'appellate jurisdiction' as used in this section denote the ordinary as distinguished from the extraordinary appellate jurisdiction of the Court. 24 A 348 (F B)

9 Every mukhtar holding a certificate issued under section 7 may apply to be enrolled in any Civil or Criminal Court mentioned therein and situate within the same limits, and subject to such rules as the High Court may from time to time make in this behalf the presiding Judge shall enrol him accordingly, and thereupon he may practise as a mukhtar in any such Civil Court and any Court subordinate thereto, and may (subject to the provisions of the Code of the Criminal Procedure,*) appear, plead and act in such Criminal Court and any Court subordinate thereto.

Mukhtar—A mukhtar holding a mukhtarnama authorising him to act in a case may perform any act which a Mukhtar may do in the course of a case. 1 C W N 11. THE LEGAL PRACTITIONERS (WOMEN) ACT, 1923.

ACT NO. XXIII OF 1923.

RECEIVED THE G-G'S ASSENT ON THE 2ND APRIL, 1923

An Act for the removal of doubts regarding the right of women to be enrolled and to practise as legal practitioners.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove certain doubts which have arisen as to the right of women to be enrolled and to practise as legal practitioners ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and extent

1 (1) This Act may be called the Legal Practitioners (Women) Act, 1923.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas

Definition

2 In this Act "legal practitioner" means a legal practitioner as defined in section 3 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879.*

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in any enactment in force in British India or in the letters patent of any High Court or in any rule or order made under or in pursuance of any such enactment or letters patent, no woman shall, by reason only of her sex, be disqualified from being admitted or enrolled as a legal practitioner or from practising as such, and any such rule or order which is repugnant to the provisions of this Act shall, to the extent of such repugnancy, be void.

Notes—"The Letters Patent of several High Courts empower them to admit proper persons as Advocates, Vakils and Attorneys and to make rules for their qualification and admission. Ss 6 and 17 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, similarly give powers to the High Courts and the Chief Controlling Revenue authorities to make rules for the qualification and admission of persons as Pleaders and Mukhtars, and as Revenue Agents respectively. Ss 6 and 31 of the Bombay Pleaders Act, 1920 (Bombay Act XVII of 1920) contain similar provisions as regards pleaders in that presidency. Conflicting decisions have been given by the High Courts as to the right of women who are otherwise qualified to be enrolled and to practise as legal practitioners. The Government of India consulted Local Governments and other authorities on the question whether women should be as eligible as men to enter upon and earn as legal practitioners. The General opinion expressed was that in the present condition of India, the question should be decided by Indian opinion. An opportunity of obtaining the views of the Assembly upon the question arose in connection with the motion moved by Dr HS Gour for a reference of his bill further to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, Select Committee. During the course of the debate upon that Resolution it was indicated that the

Provided that if in any case there has been no such allocation, or if it appears to the Court that by reason of special circumstances it would be inequitable that the amount to be added to the liabilities of the company in respect of the life assurance business should be an amount equal to such proportion as aforesaid, the amount to be so added shall be such amount as the Court may direct

As a result of these two rulings it was settled law that a Dharmakarta Mahant or manager of a Hindu religious property or the Mutwali or Sajjadanashin in whom the management of Muhammadan endowments is vested are not trustees within the meaning of the word as used in section 10 of the Limitation Act, for the reason that the property does not vest in them. The result was that when a suit was brought against a person not being an assign for valuable consideration, endowments of that nature were not protected—Statement of Objects and Reasons. Section 10 as amended now puts Hindu and Muhammadan religious endowments on the same footing as other trust funds which definitely vest in a trustee. Ibid Shebuti possession cannot be adverse 60 C 54=A I R 1033 Cal 295. 126 By a Hindu governed by the law of the Mitakshara to set aside his father's alienation of ancestral property	Twelve years *	When the alienor takes possession of the property

Notes—In a suit under the Mitakshara law for possession of land by setting aside illegal sales by his father the plaintiff's only cause of action is the taking possession by the defendant of what was the son's joint share in the property and his suit is governed by this article 23 W R 419, see also A W N 1881 109 70

that time under the article only runs from the date when possession is obtained. The result was that the view of the first two judges that the article operated to the effect of a limitation failed. This case was considered by Richardson and Richardson held that limitation under the article operated on which the property or the title was mortgaged to the transferee. The other judge dissented. The effect of the article was to the effect of a limitation to any debt or claim of the trustee finally.

that under the article possession must be taken on the date of transfer and accordingly it is not certain which of the views held by the Madras Full Bench in the case of Shankar is to be followed by him. After consulting the Local Government have come to the conclusion that the period of limitation should be the period of time when the sale becomes known to the plaintiff. On this point the Select Committee say: "There are three points namely, (i) the date of the transfer, (ii) the date proposed by us, the date of the sale, and (iii) the date including that of all the High Courts. We think that at this Article should be adopted as drafted by us." Report of the Select Committee

* "134A To set aside a transfer of immovable property comprised in a Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist religious or charitable endowment, made by a manager thereof for a valuable consideration"	Twelve years	When the transfer becomes known to the plaintiff
134B By the manager of a Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist religious or charitable endowment, to recover possession of immovable property comprised in the endowment which has been transferred by a previous manager for a valuable consideration	Twelve years	The death, resignation or removal of the transferor
134C By the manager of a Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist religious or charitable endowment to recover possession of movable property comprised in the endowment which has been sold by a previous manager for a valuable consideration	Twelve years.	The death, resignation or removal of the seller and 134 B, which give each successor a period of limitation, but will lay the successors of a transferee for value open to the risk of a suit perhaps several generations after all chance of obtaining evidence has disappeared. The strength of these criticisms is weakened when section 2 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act is considered. It is not possible for the courts to admit the fact of a transfer of property by a manager of a trust. We propose to amend the article so that it shall be normal in all similar cases. Where the subjects of the transfer are immovable property, then in the majority of suits the new article will have much the same effect as the provision we originally proposed, for after the expiry of twelve years from the death of the transferor and are likely to diminish rapidly as time goes on.

our decision to fix a definite limit of time for the bringing of these suits re opens the question of the duration of the period of limitations, for while three years seemed enough so long as each successive manager had a right to sue it seems inadequate when limitation is to begin from and end finally on a definite date. We propose therefore, to restore the original period of twelve years and to achieve this we have transferred Article 48C and included it in the Schedule as Article 131 C with the necessary change in the third column

'We considered the suggestion that these new Articles should include a specific

on suits to establish rights which arise under the Hindu law, and it has always been recognised that Sikhs and Jains are subject to Hindu law except in so far as they may have varied it by their own custom. We think the safer course is to omit specific reference to Sikhs and Jains.—Report of the Select Committee

‘Provided that nothing herein contained shall—

(a) entitle such person to recover anything by attachment and sale or otherwise out of any property which has been transferred to a woman or for her benefit on condition that she shall have no power during her marriage to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein, or

(b) affect the liability of a husband for debts contracted by his wife's agency expressed or implied §

† Compare 33 & 34 Vict, c 93 s 11

‡ See the Indian Succession Act 19 of 1925

§ The words within quotations have been substituted by Act XXI of 1929

Notes—The Act is intended to include separate property of a married woman subject to a restraint upon anticipation 12 C 572, 11 B 348, 30 M 378, 18 M 19 Husband is not a necessary party in a suit against her separate property where marriage took place before 1865 10 C L R 536, see also 8 B L R 372

Proviso—Section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act embodies what is known as the principle of 'restraint on anticipation' Before sections 4 and 44 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, were enacted, under the common law the property of a woman became, on her marriage, the property of her husband, but property could be separately settled on her by means of the intervention of trustees The Married Women's Property Act, 1874, provided that she could hold her wages and earnings as separate property Section 8 of that Act, which relates to post nuptial debts of married woman, provides that if any person enters into a contract with a married woman possessed of separate property on the faith of being satisfied out of that property, such person is entitled to sue and to the extent of the separate property to recover what he might have received if she had been unmarried Section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act 1882 provides that property can be transferred to a married woman restrained, her from alienating or charging it during coverture The question therefore arises whether a creditor of a married woman having property has a right to enforce his claim against it by Property Act In other words whether sions of s 10 of the Transfer of Property 522) the question was answered in favour that section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act left untouched the provision of the Married Women's Property Act This view was doubted in Bombay (1 L R 11 B 348) and was not followed in Madras (1 L R 30 Mad 378) It was correctly pointed out in the Bombay case that section 8 of the Married Women's Property Act was not intended to make a condition as to restraint on alienation invalid if it was valid under the Transfer of Property Act It only declares the liability of married woman for a debt contracted after marriage to be the same as far as a debt contracted before marriage It does not declare that her property subject to restraint is liable as if she were unmarried To make this point clear, we propose to introduce an exception in section 11 of the Married Women's Property Act in conformity with provision of section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act 1882.—Report of the Special Committee

V.—Husband's liability for Wife's Debts

9 * A husband married after the thirty first day of December, 1865, shall not by reason only of such marriage be liable to the debts of his wife contracted before marriage, but the wife shall be liable to be sued for, and shall, to the extent of her separate property be liable to satisfy such debts as if she had continued unmarried

Provided that nothing contained in this section shall invalidate any contract into which a husband may, before the passing of this Act, have entered in consideration of his wife's antenuptial debts

§VI.—Husband's liability for wife's breach of trust or devastation

10 Where a woman is a trustee, executrix or administratrix either before or after marriage, her husband shall not, unless he acts or intermeddles in the trust or administration be liable for any breach of trust committed by her or for any misapplication, loss or damage to the estate of the deceased caused or made by her, or for any loss to such estate arising from her neglect to get in any part of the property of the deceased

Notes—For several years past there has been a growing feeling amongst the Muhammadan community that the wakf endowments which have been made or are being made, and which madans are being wasted for their own hands the trust may have come in course of time. Instances of such misuse of trust property are unfortunately so very common that Wakf endowment has now come to be regarded as a mere device to tie up property in order to keep it out of the law under the cloak of a plausible dedication. Mutwallis are persons who are utterly unfit and who by their moral delinquencies bring discredit not merely on the endowment but on the community itself. It is believed that the feeling is unanimous that some steps should be taken in order that incompetent and unscrupulous mutwallis may be checked in their career of waste and mismanagement and that the endowments themselves may be appropriated to the purposes for which they had been originally dedicated. Statement of Objects and Reasons The whole object of this Act is to provide a speedy method of exercising control over the management of all these wakf properties in respect of which there was no dispute. 9 O W N 538—A L R the Act does not depend on the attitude which he occupies in an alleged wakf 7 Luck 601—9 R 1932 Oudh 210 (F B) Mussalman Wakf Act, Vide A I II 1930

11 A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque drawn or made in British India, and made payable in, or drawn upon any person resident in British India, shall be deemed to be an inland instrument

Notes—A bill of exchange drawn in India and or a foreign bill An inland bill be both drawn and payable in India upon some person resident in British India but unless the contrary appears on the face of the bill the holder may treat it as an inland bill Halsbury, Vol II p 475 See also Hirschfield v Smith (1865) L R 1 C R 340 A bill drawn upon a resident in British India is an inland bill wherever it may have been drawn in or out of British India 129 Ind Cas 190

13 (1)* A "negotiable instrument" means a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable either to order or to bearer

Explanation (I)—A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is payable to order which is expressed to be so payable or which is expressed to be payable to a particular person, and does not contain words prohibiting transfer or indicating an intention that it shall not be transferable

Explanation (II)—A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is payable to bearer which is expressed to be so payable or on which the only or last endorsement is an endorsement in blank

Explanation (III)—Where a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, either originally or by endorsement, is expressed to be payable to the order of the specified person, and not to him or his order, it is nevertheless payable to him or his order at his option

"(2)* A negotiable instrument may be made payable to two or more payees jointly or it may be made payable in the alternative to one of two, or one or some of several payees"

17 Where an instrument may be construed either as a promissory note or bill of exchange the holder may, at his election treat it as either and the instrument shall be thenceforward treated accordingly

Notes — It is customary for bills and notes to have the amount written in figures at the top of the instrument and in words in the body of the instrument Where there is a discrepancy between the two the sum denoted by the words is the amount payable and evidence cannot be adduced to show that in fact there is a mistake made

Notes—The estoppel arising from s 20 cannot be applied to the paper or papers which the signature covers 54 Ind Cas 3 So long as the amount of a promissory note can be found out from an instrument itself without extraneous aid, the omission to state in the body of the promissory note does not vitiate its character as such 1 Bur L J 172 Where a person gives another a blank hundi with his signature he prima facie authorises the latter to fill it up and give to the world the bill as accepted by him 59 Ind Cas 657 A payee can fill a blank in an inchoate instrument and sue on it himself after filling it or endorse it to some one 17 Ind Cas 915

21 In a promissory note or bill of exchange the expressions "at sight" and "on presentment" mean on demand The expression "after sight" means, in a promissory note, after presentment for sight, and, in a bill of exchange, after acceptance, or noting for non acceptance, or protest for non acceptance

Notes—Where an instrument is payable at a fixed period after date after sight or after the happening of a specified event the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run and by including the day of payment. Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict c 61) s 14 (2); see also Campbell v French, (1795) 6 Term Rep 300.

25 When the day on which a promissory note or bill of exchange is at maturity is a public holiday, the instrument shall be deemed to be due on the next preceeding business day.

Explanation—The expression 'public holiday' includes Sundays, New Years day Christmas day, if either of such days falls on a Sunday the next following Monday, Good Friday and any other day declared by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette to be a public holiday.

English law—When the last day of Grace falls on Sunday Christmas day, Good Friday or a day appointed by Royal proclamation as a public fast or thanks giving day the instrument is due and payable on the preceding business day. When the day falls on a Good Friday under the last day the instrument is due on the day preceding Good Friday. 11 p 447

But the Indian Act does not require this, but only a body of the document, that M L T 367=(1912) M W N 155 induces the executant of a third party only would be the 85 Ind Cas 457. In the case of an agent the question under this section is whether the words are sufficiently unequivocal to indicate that he has not made himself personally liable 92 Ind Cas 805=50 M L J 125, see also 4 Rang 551, 53 M L J 814. The language of section 29 is different from that of section 28 in that there must be express word limiting liability and such liability can only be limited to the extent of the assets of the deceased. Where section 29 specifically applies to a given set of facts the principle of section 28 can not be invoked 30 M L J 125. This section does not apply where the suit is brought not on the promissory note but on the consideration. In such a case the suit can not be maintained 27 N L R 324. When a bill of exchange is accepted by an agent of the drawee the acceptance is good. The hand that holds the pen is immaterial, if in fact there is authority to sign 129 Ind Cas 305. 30 The drawer of a bill of exchange or cheque is bound, in case of dishonour by the drawee or acceptor thereof, to compensate the holder, provided due notice of dishonour has been given to or received by, the drawer as hereinafter provided.

Liability of drawer

Notes—A member of a Hindu family whom it is sought to make liable by a suit on a hundi drawn by the manager of the family is entitled to urge that no notice of dishonour had been given to the manager (drawer) so as to make the latter liable under s 30 of the Act 20 B 488. When the acceptor of a hundi payable at sight

It is plain from the terms of ss 30 and 93 of the Act that notice of dishonour should be given to the drawer of a hundi to give the plaintiff a cause of action and notice can only be dispensed with under the circumstances mentioned in s 98 30 C 977=7 C W N 878, see 66 P W R 1911. In a suit by the holder of a dishonoured hundi where no notice of dishonour has been given to the drawer the burden of proving that the party charged could not suffer damage for want of notice is on the plaintiff and there should be a definite issue on the point 171 P L R 1911 see also 30 M L J 369=39 M 965. Where hundis were drawn in favour of Bank and Railway receipts for goods consigned to the drawee were handed over to the Bank which through mistake handed over the Railway receipts to the drawer before acceptance of the hundis which were subsequently dishonoured by the drawee. Held, that the loss of this collateral security did not affect the right of the bank to recover on the hundis from the drawer under s 30 of the Act 30 Ind Cas 15. Notice of dishonour should be given as soon as the bill is dishonoured. The omission to give it discharges the persons who are entitled to such notice 116 Ind Cas 887.

In default of such payment as aforesaid such maker or acceptor is bound to compensate any party to the note or bill for any loss or damage sustained by him and caused by such default

Notes—Where the payee of a promissory note is only a benamidar he cannot sue against the drawer 7 M L J 64 The general rule is that the acceptor of a bill of exchange is bound

as a bill due or accepted if the onus is upon him to get rid of his liability, and secondly except under peculiar circumstances the proof of which lies upon the defendant a man who signs a bill is presumed to be liable for the whole amount appearing on the face of the document 36 Ind Cas 996

33 No person except the drawee of a bill of exchange, or all or some of several drawees or a person named therein as a drawee in case of need, or an acceptor for honour, can bind himself by an acceptance

Notes—Where a person against whom a bill of exchange is drawn by name, accepts the bill for or on behalf of a member there is no valid acceptance 85=A I R 1925 Bom 252 1928 Sind 50

34 Where there are several drawees of a bill of exchange who are not partners, each of them can accept it for himself, but none of them can accept it for another without his authority

35 In the absence of a contract to the contrary, whoever indorses and delivers a negotiable instrument before maturity, without, in such indorsement expressly excluding his own liability, is bound thereby to every subsequent holder in case of dishonour by the drawee, acceptor or maker to compensate such holder for any loss or damage caused to him by such dishonour, provided due notice of dishonour has been given to, or received by, such indorser as hereinafter provided.

Every indorser after dishonour is liable as upon an instrument payable on demand

36 Every prior party to a negotiable instrument is liable thereon to a holder in due course until the instrument is duly satisfied

Liability of prior parties to holder in due course

Notes—The expression "prior party" means maker or drawer, the acceptor and the other intervening indorsees

37 The maker of a promissory note or cheque, the drawer of a bill of exchange until acceptance and the acceptor are, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, respectively liable thereon as principal debtors, and the other parties thereto are liable thereon as sureties for the maker, drawer or acceptor, as the case may be

As between E and A, A is the principal debtor, and C and D are his sureties. As between E and C, C is the principal debtor, and D is his surety.

39 When the holder of an accepted bill of exchange enters into any contract with the acceptor which under section 134 or 135 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, would discharge the other parties the holder may expressly reserve his right to charge the other parties, and in such case they are not discharged

Suretyship

Notes—This section is an exception to the general law that if a debtor is discharged by the creditor the surety is also discharged

40 Where the holder of a negotiable instrument, without the consent of the indorser, destroys or impairs the indorser's remedy against a prior party, the indorser is discharged from liability to the holder to the same extent as if the instrument had been paid at maturity

Second indorsement 'Peter Williams'

Third indorsement, 'Wright & Co'

Fourth indorsement, 'John Rozario'

This bill A puts in suit against John Rozario and strikes out without John Rozario's consent the indorsements by Peter Williams and Wright & Co A is not entitled to recover anything from John Rozario.

41 An acceptor of a bill of exchange already indorsed is not relieved from liability by reason that such indorsement is forged, if he knew or had reason to believe the indorsement to be forged when he accepted the bill

Notes—An acceptor who has admitted the authenticity of his sign as true cannot afterwards refuse to honour it on the ground that it is forged Leath v Buck (1802) 4 Esp 225

Notes—Where a promissory note which is not negotiable alleges a deposit of cash as the consideration for the note and that consideration fails the document will create no obligation between the parties even if it were negotiable under this section L M R (1893 1900) 537

43 A negotiable instrument made, drawn, accepted, indorsed or transferred to a party for consideration, such holder, and every subsequent holder deriving title from him, may recover the amount due on such instrument from the transferor for consideration or any prior party thereto

Exception I—No party for whose accommodation a negotiable instrument has been made drawn accepted or indorsed can if he have paid the amount thereof, recover, thereon such amount from any person who became a party to such instrument for his accommodation

44 When the consideration for which a person signed a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque consisted of money, and was originally absent in part or has subsequently failed in part, the sum which a holder standing in immediate relation with such signer is entitled to receive from him is proportionally reduced.

Explanation—The drawer of a bill of exchange stands in immediate relation with the acceptor. The maker of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque stands in immediate relation with the payee, and the indorser with his indorsee. Other signers may by agreement stand in immediate relation with a holder.

Notes—A consideration accruing to the one party or suffered, or undertaken by the consideration for which of money or something the it was either originally absent in part or has subsequently failed in part the sum which a holder standing in immediate relation to such party is entitled to receive from him is pro tanto reduced. Day v Nix, 9 Moore 159. Forman Wright, 11 C B 481.

45 Where a part of the consideration for which a person signed a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, though not consisting of money, is ascertainable in money without collateral enquiry, and there has been a failure of that part, the sum which a holder standing in immediate relation with such signer is entitled to receive from him is proportionally reduced.

If the drawer on request as aforesaid refuses to give such duplicate bill, he may be compelled to do so.

Notes—Where hundis payable at sight is lost it cannot be said that it is lost before it is overdue within this section. The holder of such a hundi is not therefore as of right entitled to demand a duplicate from the drawer under that section. The right to obtain a duplicate in case of loss is however a part of the mercantile laws of countries and a duplicate may be demanded on equitable principles where the bill is lost whether before or after maturity. Where owing to the refusal of the drawee of a hundi to supply a duplicate none is presented to the drawee no presentment for payment is necessary as against the drawee under section 76 (a) of the Negotiable Instruments Act 72 Ind Cas 777

CHAPTER IV OF NEGOTIATION

46 The making, acceptance or indorsement of a promissory note bill of exchange or cheque is completed by delivery, actual or constructive

Delivery

As between parties standing in immediate relation, delivery to be effectual must be made by the party making, accepting or indorsing the instrument, or by a person authorized by him in that behalf

As between such parties and any holder of the instrument other than a holder in due course it may be shown that the instrument was delivered conditionally or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring absolutely the property therein

A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to bearer is negotiable by the delivery thereof

Notes—Government promissory note can be transferred by registered deed of gift 16 C W N 666 Sending of cheques by post does not constitute delivery 50 B 118 Under this section it may be shown that the instrument was delivered conditionally or for a special purpose only and not for the purpose of transferring absolutely the property therein 76 Ind Cas 461 Promote could be shown to be given as security 113 Ind Cas 456 Property in a currency note passes by mere delivery 10; Ind Cas 719 The liability in relation to a negotiable instrument attaches by or from delivery 100 Ind Cas 332 In order to make the property in a bill pass it must be delivered to the indorsee actually or constructively 87 Ind Cas 226

92 A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is said to be dishonoured by non payment when the maker of the note, acceptor of the bill or drawee of the cheque makes default in payment upon being duly required to pay the same

Notes—The provisions of this section dealing with dishonour by non payment of a bill payable on demand though presented for acceptance is not required by law in such a case 52 Ind Cas 370 see also 40 L W 666

93 When a promissory note bill of exchange or cheque is dishonoured by non acceptance or non payment, the holder thereof or some party thereto who remains liable thereon must give notice that the instrument has been so dishonoured to all other parties whom the holder seeks to make severally liable thereon and to some one of several parties whom he seeks to make jointly liable thereon

Nothing in this section renders it necessary to give notice to the maker of the dishonoured promissory note, or the drawee or acceptor of the dishonoured bill of exchange or cheque

Notes—Notice of dishonour must be given within a reasonable time 140 P W 11 1914=243 P L R 1914, see also 13 Ind Cas 215=5 S L R 168 In the case of hundis such notice is required 6A 78=A W N 1883 216 The onus is on the plaintiff to show that such notice is given Dawson v Sherwood (1816) 1 Stark 314 Notice of dishonour should be given to the indorser of a promissory note payable on demand in order to make him liable on the instrument. 130 Ind Cas 477=A 1 R 1931 Mad 113

94 Notice of dishonour may be given to a duly authorized agent of the person to whom it is required to be given, or, where he has died, to his legal representative, or, where he has been declared an insolvent, to his assignee may be oral or written, may, if written, be sent by post, and may be in any form, but it must inform the party to whom it is given, either in express terms or by reasonable intendment, that the instrument has been dishonoured, and in what way, and that he will be held liable thereon, and it must be given within a reasonable time after dishonour, at the place of business or (in case such party has no place of business) at the residence of the party for whom it is intended.

If the notice is duly directed and sent by post and miscarries, such miscarriage does not render the notice invalid.

Notes—Notice may be given in writing or by personal communication Metcalfe v. Richardson, (1852) 11 C B 1011, Prideaux v. Criddle, (1869) L R 4 Q B 455 It may be sent by post Dobree v. Eastwood (1827) 3 C. & P. 250, see also Berridge v. Fitzgerald, (1869) L R 4 Q B 639 It may be sent by special messenger Pearson v. Barron, 2 Smith K B 404

95 Any party receiving notice of dishonour must, in order to render any Party receiving must transmit notice of dishonour prior party liable to himself, give notice of dishonour to such party within a reasonable time, unless such party otherwise receives due notice as provided by section 93

96 When the instrument is deposited with an agent for presentment, the Agent for presentment is entitled to the same time to give notice to his principal as if he were the holder giving notice of dishonour, and the principal is entitled to a further like period to give notice of dishonour

Notes—Vide Clode v. Bayley, (1843) 12 M & W 51, Lysaght v. Bryant, (1850) 19 L J, C P 160

97 When the party to whom notice of dishonour is despatched is dead, When party to whom notice given is dead but the party despatching the notice is ignorant of his death, the notice is sufficient

Notes—If he is not ignorant of his death notice should be given to his legal representatives Vide, Halsbury, Vol II, p 545

When notice of dishonour is unnecessary 98 No notice of dishonour is necessary

- (a) when it is dispensed with by the party entitled thereto
- (b) in order to charge the drawer when he has countermanded payment
- (c) when the party charged could not suffer damage for want of notice,
- (d) when the party entitled to notice cannot after due search be found or the party bound to give notice is, for any other reason, unable without any fault of his own to give it,
- (e) to charge the drawers when the acceptor is also a drawer,
- (f) in the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable,
- (g) when the party entitled to notice, knowing the facts, promises unconditionally to pay the amount due on the instrument

Notes—Neither presentment nor notice of dishonour is necessary if it is shown that at the time when the funds were drawn there were no funds belonging to the drawer in the hands of the drawee 2 Bom L R 891 In case of dishonoured bill of exchange notice of dishonour is absolutely necessary 14 Ind Cas 51 Where on the plaintiff's notice 7 A I R 1932 Nag notice of dishonour and it is for the person relying upon any such exception to establish all the requirements thereof 55 Ind Cas 610

CHAPTER IX.

OF NOTING AND PROTEST.

99 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non acceptance or non payment, the holder may cause such dishonour to be noted by a notary public upon the instrument or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each

Noting

Such notice must be made within a reasonable time after dishonour, and must specify the date of dishonour, the reason, (if any) assigned for such dishonour or, if the instrument has not been expressly dishonoured, the reason why the holder treats it as dishonoured, and the notary's charges

Notes—There are certain advantages in causing even an inland instrument to be noted. Not only is the notary a person whose business is to know and to adopt the proper measures when an instrument is dishonoured and therefore both the best agent for the carrying out of such measures and the best witness at a trial of their having been carried out but his minute on the instrument itself is the most satisfactory record of the non payment of the instrument for the information of the parties who may thereafter be called upon to pay Halsbury, Vol II p 537

100 When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non acceptance or non payment, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause such dishonour to be noted and certified by a notary public. Such certificate is called a protest

Protest

When the acceptor of a bill of exchange has become insolvent, or his credit has been publicly impeached, before the maturity of the bill the holder may within a reasonable time, cause a notary public to demand better security of the acceptor, and on its being refused may within a reasonable time, cause such facts to be noted and certified as aforesaid. Such certificate is called a protest for better security

Notes—The expenses of noting, or when protest is necessary and the protest has been extended the expenses of protest are part of the liquidated damages recoverable on dishonour. But protest for better security is not necessary and the expenses therefore cannot be recovered. Re English Bank (1893) 2 Ch 438

Contents of protest

101 A protest under section 100 must contain—

(a) either the instrument itself or a literal transcript of the instrument and of everything written or printed thereupon,

(b) the name of the person for whom and against whom the instrument has been protested,

(c) a statement that payment or acceptance or better security, as the case may be, has been demanded of such person by the notary public, the terms of his answer (if any) or a statement that he gave no answer or that he could not be found,

(d) when the note or bill has been dishonoured the place and the time of dishonour, and when better security has been refused the place and time of refusal,

(e) the subscription of the notary public making the protest,

(f) in the event of an acceptance for honour or of a payment for honour the name of the person by whom of the person for whom, and the manner in which, such acceptance or payment was offered and effected

A notary public may make the demand mentioned in clause (c) of this section either in person or by his clerk or, where authorized by agreement or usage by registered letter *

Notes—A protest may be made out in duplicate and the second copy is a much primary evidence as the copy first drawn out. Geraldo pulo v Wieler 20 L J C P 105

and according to some of the old authorities, protest is not necessary in the case of a bill of exchange drawn upon a resident in British India still remains an inland bill wherever it may have been drawn, and no protest is necessary

place mentioned as the residence of the drawee, after dishonour by non acceptance may, without further presentment to the drawee,

be protested for non payment in the place specified

for payment, unless paid before or at maturity

Notes—This section corresponds to section 51 (6) of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1882

104 Foreign bills of exchange must be protested for dishonour

Protest of foreign bills when such protest is required by the law of the place where they are drawn

Notes—According to English law protest is only necessary in the case of a foreign bill appearing on its face to be such. A protest is not necessary in the case of a foreign promissory note—Vide s 51 (2) of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1882. A bill of exchange drawn upon a resident in British India still remains an inland bill wherever it may have been drawn, and no protest is necessary 129 Ind Cas 190

104A For the purposes of this Act where a bill or note is required to

When noting equivalent to be protested within a specified time or before protest some further proceeding is taken, it is sufficient that the bill has been noted for protest before the expiration of the specified time or the taking of the proceeding, and the formal protest may be extended at any time thereafter as of the date of the noting *

Reasonable time of giving carry on business or live (as the case may be) notice of dishonour in different places such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched by the next post or on the day next after the day of dishonour

If the said parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour

Notes—Time is an element of the utmost importance in regard to the due sending of notice of dishonour. Notice must be given within a reasonable time after dishonour. Herschfield v Smith (1865) L R 1 C P 340. It may be given as soon as it is dishonoured. If it is until the following day, the course of post, the notice is not given in time. Hilton v Fair Clough, (1811) 2 Camp 633. As to when it is not given on reasonable time, Vide Smith v Mullett, (1809) 2 Camp 208.

107 A party receiving notice of dishonour, who seeks to enforce his right against a prior party transmits the notice within a reasonable time if he transmits it within the same time after its receipt as he would have had to give notice if he had been the holder.

Notes—The provisions of ss 93, 94, 105, 106 and 107 show that the holder of a bill of exchange or kundi is bound to give notice of its dishonour at the earliest opportunity to all the parties whom he desires to make liable thereon. 104 P W R 1914=243 P L R 1914.

OF ACCEPTANCE AND PAYMENT FOR HONOUR AND REFERENCE IN CASE OF NEED

108 When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-acceptance or for better security, any person, not being a party already liable thereon may, with the consent of the holder, by writing on the bill, accept the same for the honour of any party thereto.*

Notes—This section corresponds to section 65(1) of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1882.

109 A person desiring to accept for honour must by writing on the bill under his hand, declare that he accepts under protest the protested bill for the honour of the drawer or of a particular indorser whom he names, or generally for honour †.

Notes—This section corresponds to s 65 (3) of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1882.

110 Where the acceptance does not express for whose honour it is made, it shall be deemed to be made for the honour of the drawer.

Notes—This section corresponds to section 65 (4) of the English Bills of Exchange Act 1882.

111 An acceptor for honour binds himself to all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour he accepts to pay the amount of the bill if the drawee do not, and such party and all prior parties are liable in honour for all losses or the bill unless it is presented (or in case the address given by such acceptor on the bill is a place other than the place where the bill is made payable) forwarded for presentment, not later than the day next after the day of its maturity.

114 Any person so paying is entitled to all the rights in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment, and may recover, from the party for whose honour he pays all sums paid with interest thereon and with all expenses properly incurred in making such payment

Object of the Legislation. "It has for some time passed been recognised that it is unsatisfactory to have two separate laws in force simultaneously in India. Further although the British Act of 1911 is in force in India, difficulties arise in applying it because of the use in it of English Common law terms and so on. For these reasons it is desirable that there should be a single consolidated Act applicable to India.

The British Act of 1911 are more effective, particularly in the than the Indian enactments, and they content of the amending statute of 1920, War. It is considered desirable there- imitated to that in force in the United on-olidate the provisions of the British Acts of 1911 and 1920, and to enact them in a form suitable for India.

"As this Bill is purely a consolidatory measure, it is not necessary to deal with the clauses in detail but it may be mentioned that it is proposed to omit provisions on the lines of sections 4 and 5 of the Act of 1920 as is considered that the matters dealt with in these lines are sufficiently covered by the provisions of the Indian Telegraph Act 1885, and the Indian Post Office Act 1898."—Statement of Objects and Reasons

13 (1) No Court (other than that of a Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government) which is inferior to that of a District or Presidency Magistrate shall try any offence under this Act

(2) If any person under trial before a Magistrate for an offence under this Act at any time before a charge is framed claims to be tried by the Court of Session the Magistrate shall, if he does not discharge the accused, commit the case for trial by that Court, notwithstanding that it is not a case exclusively triable by that Court

(3) No Court shall take cognizance of any offence under this Act unless upon complaint made by order of or under authority from, the Governor General in Council Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in this behalf

Provided that a person charged with such an offence may be arrested or a warrant for his arrest may be issued and executed, and any such person may be remanded in custody or on bail, notwithstanding that such complaint has not been made, but no further or other proceedings shall be taken until such complaint has been made

(4) For the purposes of the trial of a person for an offence under this Act, the offence may be deemed to have been committed either at the place in which the same actually was committed or at any place in British India in which the offender may be found

Notes — The Committee have proposed no change in this clause but as Mr Neogy has intimated that he proposes to dissent on the ground that all offences under the Act should be triable only by a Court of Session, the Committee think it right to express their views in favour of retaining the clause as it stands. Under the Indian Official Secrets Act 1889 all Magistrates of the first class were authorized to try offences under the Act while under the Bill it is provided that the only Magistrate who may try cases shall be those described in sub clause (1) of this clause. Mr Neogy relies on section 3 of the Official Secrets Act, 1911, in which it is laid down that an offence under the Act shall not be tried by any Court outside the United Kingdom which has no jurisdiction to try crimes which involves the greatest punishment allowed by law. As the Bill stands, read with the second schedule to the Code of Criminal Procedure the graver offences punishable under section 3 with imprisonment up to 14 years will be triable only by Courts of Session; and the Committee are of opinion that the other offences under the Act can properly be the Attorney General and at the same time they do not forget that a person brought up for summary trial can claim to be tried at the assizes. They have also observed that on a trial under the Summary Jurisdiction Act, the maximum sentence of imprisonment is three months even though on a trial for the same offence at the assizes on indictment the maximum sentence for the same offence is two years. In the opinion of the committee the decisive factor should be that this Bill sets out to adapt the provisions of the English Acts of 1911 to 1920 to Indian conditions and the Indian Legislature is the best judge as to the capacity of Magistrates in British India to try cases under the Act.—Report of the Select Committee

14 (1) In addition and without prejudice to any powers which a Court may possess to order the exclusion of the public from proceedings before a Court against any person for an offence under this Act or in the course of the trial of a person, and by the prosecution, on the ground that the given or of any statement to be made in the course of the proceedings would be prejudicial to the safety of the State, that all or any portion of the public shall be excluded during any part of the hearing, the Court may make an order to that effect, but the passing of sentence shall in any case take place in public

Notes—The Court has been invested with the powers to hold the trial in camera for reasons of State. But the sentence in all cases must be pronounced in public

15 Where the person guilty of an offence under this Act is a company or corporation, every director and officer of the company or corporation with whose knowledge and consent the offence was committed shall be guilty of the like offence

Notes—'We have thought it right to shift the burden of proving knowledge and consent on the prosecution'—Report of the Select Committee

ACT NO II OF 1913.

RECEIVED THE G-G'S ASSENT ON THE 27TH FEBRUARY, 1913

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law constituting the office of Official Trustee

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law constituting the office of the Official Trustee, It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Notes—'The revision of the law relating to the office of Administrator General has necessitated revision of the law relating to the office of Official Trustees. Many of the provisions of the existing law already apply mutatis mutandis to both offices, and it is considered desirable further to approximate the constitution of these offices and the conditions of their tenures as closely as possible since their duties will be normally discharged by the same person. The existing law relating to the office of the Official Trustee is contained in the Official Trustees Act XVII of 1864 the Probate and Administration Act II of 1890, and the Administrator Generals and Official Trustees Act V of 1922. The trend of this legislation has as in the case of the legislation relating to the Administrator General been to substitute for a class of Official Trustees remunerated by commission a class of salaried officials whose liabilities are undertaken by the Government in return for fees credited to the Government. The draft Bill carries this process a stage further and does away consideration of some of the provisions of that statute has enabled useful amendments to be made in the Indian law. The Bill further deals with the qualifications for appointment of Official Trustees, fees, the rule making power and similar matters on the same line as those explained in connection with the Bill relating to the office of Administrator General. Opportunity has been taken to make several minor amendments in the law and to consolidate the enactments relating to the Official Trustee. The more important of the changes are explained in the table of distribution annexed to the Bill and in the notes annexed thereto.—Statement of Objects and Reasons

ACT NO. IV OF 1893

RECEIVED THE G. G.'S ASSENT ON THE 9TH MARCH, 1893.

An Act to amend the Law relating to Partition.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to partition, It is hereby enacted as follows —

Title, extent, commencement and saving 1 (1) This Act may be called the Partition Act, 1893,

(2) It extends to the whole of British India,*

(4) But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect any local law providing for the partition of immovable property paying revenue to Government.

Notes — This bill was introduced by Sir Rash Behary Ghosh. In introducing the bill he observed 'In this country where co-parcenary is one of the commonest modes of holding property the proper method of effecting a partition must always be a question of considerable importance'. Apart from the Act, the Court has an inherent power to refuse to divide the property by metes and bounds and to adopt such other means as may appear appropriate. L. W. 730-61 M. L. J. the Act exclude the subject of partition at 2 Whenever in any suit for partition in which, if instituted prior to the commencement of this Act, a decree for partition might have been made, it appears to the Court that by reason of the nature of the property to which the suit relates, or of the number of the shareholders therein or of any other special circumstance, a division of the property cannot reasonably or conveniently be made, and that a sale of the property, and distribution of the proceeds would be more beneficial for all the shareholders, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the request of any of such shareholders interested individually or collectively to the extent of one moiety or upwards direct a sale of the property and a distribution of the proceeds

Notes — parties that should be sold (3) that at least one half of the shareholders must concur in the sale. But in order to prevent the possibility of a request for sale being made on inadequate grounds or from proper motives, provision is made for the compulsory transfer of their shares by the parties who desire to sell to the other even when all the conditions which I trust will never of the Partition Act applies where the suit is brought by the sharer against the transferee 23 B 77 This section which gives the Court power to order sale instead of division in partition suits applies only to suits for partition of immovable property.

(2) If two or more shareholders severally apply for leave to buy as provided in subsection (1) the Court shall order a sale of the share or shares to the shareholder who offers to pay the highest price above the valuation made by the Court

(3) If no such shareholder is willing to buy such share or shares at the price so ascertained, the applicants shall be liable to pay all costs of or incident to the application or applications

Notes—Under this section the person at whose instance an order for sale of property sought to be partitioned is made is not entitled to apply for leave to purchase the share or shares of the other party or parties entitled to partition Under this section also the Court is not competent to order the whole of the property in question to be sold at a valuation but only the share or shares of the applicant or applicants for sale A W N 1805 231; 7 S L R 117=24 Ind Cas 273 The Court has acted in accordance with ss. 2 and 3 when the parties are not at issue on the point that a division cannot be reasonably or conveniently made 16 A L J 384=47 Ind Cas 905 The provision of the Partition Act apply to the stage at which the suit is in the Court of first instance The various provisions of the Act manifestly indicate that, if any action can be taken under the Act, it can only be taken in the Court of first instance before a decree for partition has been actually made After a decree for partition has been made, after one of the co sharers in the property has remained quiescent in both the Courts below, he could not be allowed to ask the final Court of Appeal to do for him what the Court might have done if he had moved the Court when the case was under trial 71 Ind Cas 983=1923 All 293 In a partition suit the defendants, who owned more than half share in a house, invited the Court to sell the house The request of the defendant was followed by a similar request by the plaintiffs who wanted to purchase the house Held, that

THE INDIAN PARTNERSHIP ACT, 1932

ACT NO IX OF 1932

An Act to define and amend the law relating to Partnership

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to partnership, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Interpretation.—In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them:—

“Act” means the Indian Partnership Act, 1932, and any Act amending that Act; and

“the law” means the law relating to partnership as it stood before the commencement of this Act.

the statute and to ask what is its natural meaning uninfluenced by any considerations derived from the previous state of the law, and not to start with enquiry how the law previously stood and then assuming that it was probably intended leave it unaltered to see if the words of the enactment will bear an interpretation in conformity with the view’ See also Ganpat v Sopana 30 Bom L R 1. The law is that on any point specifically in the codified enactment, and as

In interpreting a statute the proper course is in the first instance, to examine the language of the statute and to ask what is its natural meaning uninfluenced by any consideration derived from the previous state of the law and not to start with enquiring how the law previously stood, and then to see if the words of the enactment will bear an interpretation in conformity with the view Narendra v. 14 A 145, Empress v. 29 C 707 (P C) = 29 I A

Construction of Consolidating Act.—In construing an Act of Parliament to amend or alter the provisions of any law, it is to be given to its provisions the same meaning as they had in the law substituted Mitchell v Simpson, 10 Q B 213.

Report of the Special Committee.—“3 In paragraph 8 of the Report of the Special Committee on the Sale of Goods Bill which was adopted as the basis of the Bill.”

was found more convenient to have separate enactments for the several branches of the law of contract, and the Transfer of Property Act, the Negotiable Instruments Act and the Merchant Shipping Act. In our opinion in view of the complexity of modern conditions the time has now come when the process should be accelerated by embodying the different branches of law relating to contract in separate self contained enactments, and we hope that the Bill which we attach to our Report may be passed into law at an early date and may be but the first of the series required to complete the task which we have outlined above.

Government of the country so expressed that the Special Committee by English and Indian Government servants law libraries. With that object in view the position is much the same as that in regard to the Sale of Goods and the remarks of the Special Committee on the Sale of Goods Bill in paragraph III of their Report may be repeated with cogency.

"Whatever merit the simple and elementary rules embodied in the Indian Contract Act may have had and however sufficient and suitable they may have been for the needs which they were intended to meet in 1872, the passage of time has revealed defects the removal of which has become necessary in order to keep the law abreast of the developments of modern business relations.

"5. The English Partnership Act contrast to the Sale of Goods nearly all the British Dominions Partnership Act which is in force a comparison with the Sale of provisions are closely followed advantages Sir Courtenay Ilbert has remarked.

"Experience shows that whenever Parliament passes a law it is formed

tive Legislation)

and to me Partly undigested except by private authors, into a series of propositions authoritatively expressed

"6. The Partnership Act, 1890, however, has not been such a successful piece of codification as the English Sale of Goods Act 1893 and has not been so but doubt an inc a work is not boon; and a mass of law, previously undigested except by private authors into a series of propositions authoritatively expressed and as carefully considered as any Act of Parliament is likely to be.

"The learned author of the treatise proceeds to discuss the difficulty of passing a considered code of law on a technical subject through a democratic Legislature like Parliament and he concludes .

"Taken as a whole . . . the requirements of the . . . tentative revision, and at this point of view the useful, although it is by . . . might have made it .

"These remarks have encouraged us to depart from the precedent of the Sale of Goods Bill, where the English Act was modified in a few particulars only and to use the Partnership Act, 1890, with some degree of freedom. Nevertheless, the Bill does not alter in any substantial way the English law of partnership or the Indian law of partnership which is based thereon. The main principles are the same, and likewise all important details. The deviations in principle it does show are on minor points, and have been introduced in order to adapt the law to Indian conditions or to supply authority . . . in the Pa . . . the word in . . . decisions . . . identity in substance of the two Acts and the similarity in wording of important provisions will avoid this undesirable result and will attract to difficult cases in India the benefit of English precedent . . .

"One feature peculiar from the laws of other . . . which the firm as a . . .

as the debtor or purposes of book-keeping, and in order to arrive at the net balance to be paid to or by each of the . . .

which subsists between persons carrying on a business in common with a view to . . . entered into partnership . . .

"firm' or 'relating to a firm'. The use of the defined word 'firm' seems almost to be avoided. The Bill confines the word 'partnership' to its legitimate defined meaning of the relation which exists between partners and wherever the partners themselves are referred to collectively it uses the word 'firm'. Hence the word 'firm' occurs very frequently in the Bill, whereas the word 'partnership' occurs rarely and thereby the Bill, as compared with the English Act, emphasises the concrete thing, the firm, as against the abstract relation of the partnership . . .

"The . . . a matter of arrangement . . . the abstract relation of comprising a partnership . . .

This, however, is not the practical or commercial view of a firm, whereunder a firm has a sufficient degree of personality and of continuity to justify such commonplaces as advertisements which . . .

claim that a firm has been established for over a century. Even the English Law as expressed in the Partnership Act 1890, has been forced to depart from the strict legal view of the firm for it speaks of changes in a firm, or persons dealing with a firm after a change in its constitution of debt due from the firm to a partner and uses other phrases concealing some degree of personality to the firm and of continuity in its existence in spite of internal changes. The Bill goes in this direction to the limits which are already implied in the English Act, and it collects together in the separate chapter entitled 'Incoming and Outgoing Partners' all provisions which directly bear upon the introduction, retirement, expulsion, insolvency and death of partners in those cases where the business of the firm is carried on without a dissolution of partnership. The result is that apart from the preliminary chapter and the chapter on "The nature of partnership", the Bill has three chapters which deal with the working firm, namely—

Chapter III—Relations of partners to one another,

Chapter IV—Relations of partners to third parties,

Chapter V—Incoming and Outgoing Partners, and one chapter relating to the extinction of a firm, namely,—

Chapter VI—Dissolution of a firm

'10 We hope that this re-arrangement of the Partnership Act, 1890, will be of practical convenience to lawyers and business men in that very numerous class of cases where there is a change in the constitution of a firm without a dissolution. The new chapter V contains a number of concise propositions setting out the legal consequences flowing from changes in the personnel of a firm when there is no dissolution which are embodied in various sections of the English Act scattered throughout all three of its parts. The re-arrangement has also the advantage of confining chapter VI strictly to provisions relating to the dissolution of a firm and its legal consequences. But we must emphasise again that in so re-arranging the English Act, we have not departed from any of its outstanding conceptions or principles.

'11 One of us would prefer to go much further and would propose that, or the whole of Chapter II and clauses (a) and (b) of clause 2, the following should be substituted—

"4 (1) A firm' is an association of persons who have joined together for the purpose of conducting some kind of lawful trade, profession, calling or enterprise as a business venture, with the object of obtaining profit by dealing with third parties each of the members of the association being in the position of a principal in all such dealings.

(2) The members of a firm are called 'partners'; their mutual relationship is called 'partnership', the name under which the business is carried on is called the 'firm name', and an act of the firm is an act or omission in which all the partners are deemed to take part.

"5 Every firm shall be deemed to be constituted by a contract between the partners whereby they agree that their partnership shall be governed by the Articles of Partnership stated in the schedule.

'Provided that the partner may, at any time, expressly or impliedly, agree to terms of partnership to the contrary of or in addition to such Articles.

According to this scheme the Articles of Partnership in the Schedule would default incapable of bringing a suit to enforce their claims as partners, whether against their co partners or against third parties. In 1918 the Industrial Commission recommended a system of compulsory registration and in 1925 the Civil Justice Committee made specific recommendations somewhat on the lines of the Registration of Business Names Act, 1916 but excepting firms with a capital below Rs 500. In 1920 the legislature of Burma passed the Burma Registration of Business Names Act, 1920 which applied the principle of compulsory registration to certain towns in Burma.

"13. All the proposals made at various times were considered by the Government of India, but owing either to lack of unanimity among the proposers or to difficulties in the proposals themselves, no conclusions were come to which could form the basis of a Bill which held any promise of a successful passage through the Indian legislature. These difficulties related to—

- (1) Hindu undivided families,
- (2) short lived partnerships, and
- (3) firms in a small way of business, and a short discussion of these will disclose the reasons why nothing so far has been done, and will help to explain the present proposals.

"14. A Hindu undivided family may carry on a family business exclusively for its own benefit or it may carry on a business with one or more outsiders as partners. Each member of such a family should have his share in the business registered and every death or transfer of share should be registered. It has been recognised that a Hindu undivided family is a community and probably would be recognised as such, as was pointed out by the Industrial Commission in 1918. As a family business may have many of the characteristics of a partnership, the law of partnership has no application to it.

but there are questions of fact mainly, or, where they are mixed questions of fact and law, the law is not that of partnership but is the Hindu law. If the partner member does represent the family and if his share of the profits of the firm goes into the family stock then the whole of the joint family property will be liable for the debts of the firm. But if the partner member is trading on his own responsibility and keeps the profits to himself then the creditors of the firm cannot realise their claims against the firm from the joint family property beyond the extent of the interest of the partner member. It will be seen that the principles of law involved are principles of the Hindu law, and that they are the same principles which are applied to all dealings by the manager or representative of the joint family.

"15. No attempt to smooth the path of litigation against a Hindu undivided family has been made, for example in the recent Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 1929, or Sale of Goods Act, 1930, though the difficulties exist on a much greater scale in connection with mortgages and sales by Hindu families generally than in connection with the restricted class of the mercantile transactions of Hindu trading families. It is submitted that the attempt need not be made now, for the limited purpose of partnership to the prejudice of the passing of an otherwise useful measure.

"16. The difficulties connected with shortlived partnerships and with firms in a small way of business may be considered together. It has been pointed out repeatedly with much force that to require small or ephemeral joint ventures to be registered would produce little public benefit and would act as a clog on petty enterprise, and such ventures are so numerous that it would be counterbalanced by the proposals, like that of the Civil Capital should be exempt or the

 of liability by the substantial members of a firm.

The Act does not make any express provision for disposal of the goodwill on the dissolution of a firm. Probably this is due to the consideration that the rules of law relating to goodwill are not confined to cases where a business has been carried on in partnership and therefore do not belong to the law of partnership in any exact sense. Nevertheless the cases and the question are considered and provided for considered on its dissolution.

general provisions could find a logical place but it is hoped that the provisions now proposed for the goodwill of firms will be found to contain principles which may be used as a general guide.

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARY

Short title, extent and commencement

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Partnership Act, 1932

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of October, 1932, except section 69, which shall come into force on the 1st day of October, 1933

Sub clause (3) — 'As regards sub clause (3) it has already been noticed in paragraph 24 of our Report that clause 68 of the Bill (=section 69) is not to come in force until one year after the rest of the Bill in order to give firms a reasonable chance to register before that clause begins to operate against them' Statement of Objects and Reasons

We propose that the Act generally should come into force on 1st October, 1932, and section 68 a year later. This arrangement should provide ample opportunity to the public to become acquainted with the new law, specially with the chapter on Registration, and to Government to make arrangements for giving effect to that chapter — Report of the Select Committee

Definitions

¶ In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) an "act of a firm" means any act or omission by all the partners, or by any partner or agent of the firm which gives rise to a right enforceable by or against the firm,

(b) "the firm" means

any person who is not a partner in the firm, and

(e) expressions used but not defined in this Act and defined in the Indian Contract Act, 1872,* shall have the meanings assigned to them in that Act

Object of the section — The definitions of 'act of a firm' and of "third party" are included to economise words throughout the Bill. The definition of "business" is taken from the Partnership Act, 1890

Business — This definition is taken from the English Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict c 39) s 45. To constitute Partnership, the existence of a business is essential. "To constitute a partnership the parties must have agreed to carry on business or to share profits in some way in common" Mollwo v Court of Wards, (1872) L R 4 P C 419. In some professions however, etiquette makes partnership impracticable for example, that of an English barrister Halsbury Vol III P 4. Meaning of the word business is discussed in 32 P L R 235 = A I R 1931 Lah 590

Application of provisions of Act IX of 1872 — The unrepealed provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872,* save in so far as they are inconsistent with the express provisions of this Act shall continue to apply to firms

Notes — "Like clause 3 of the Sale of Goods Bill, this will make the Indian Partnership Act a branch of the general law of contract. Sub clause (f) of clause 2 has the same object" Notes on Clauses

THE NATURE OF PARTNERSHIP

Definition of 'partnership', 'partner', 'firm' and 'firm name'

4 "Partnership" is the relation between persons who have agreed to share the profits of a business carried on by all or any of them acting for all

Persons who have entered into partnership with one another are called individually "partners" and collectively "a firm," and the name under which their business is carried on is called the "firm name"

Section 6—As mentioned in the statement of the rule in Cox Bill in a highly generalised series of rules having the effect of section (3) of section 2 reproduces along with section 3, what was known as Bovill's Act (28 and 29 Vict c 86) whose history is well known. Section 2 has been held by the Court in many cases not to have superseded the rule in Cox v Hickman, which is of the rules in that series. Bovill's Act was repealed, but it would have been better to have omitted it and to have expressed more emphatically the principle laid down by the House of Lords in Cox v Hickman and to have left that principle to be practically worked out by the Courts.—Notes on Clauses

6 In determining whether a group of persons is or is not a firm, or whether a person is or is not a partner in a firm regard shall be had to the real relation between the parties as shown by all relevant facts taken together.

Explanation I—The sharing of profits or of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in that property does not of itself make such persons partners.

Explanation II—The receipt by a person of a share of the profits of a business or of a payment contingent upon the earning of profits or varying with the profits earned by a business, does not of itself make him a partner with the persons carrying on the business, and in particular, the receipt of such share or payment—

(a) by a lender of money to persons engaged or about to engage in any business,

(b) by a person who is not a partner in the business,

(c) by a person who is not a partner in the business,

(d) by a person who is not a partner in the business.

the sale of the goodwill or share thereof does not of itself make the receiver a partner with the persons carrying on the business.

Notes—This section is a comprehensive statement of the rule in the leading case on the nature of partnership (Cox v Hickman, 11 H L C 268) which has been followed in innumerable decisions since 1860 but has not been

Explanations—Explanations I and II are a compromise between section 2 of the Partnership Act 1890 and Lindley's view. As the rule in Cox v Hickman has been given statutory expression in this section, it seems unnecessary to reproduce the elaborate ate, indirect, though only partial, expression of it in section 2 of the English Act, nevertheless that section contains some useful propositions of law for the guidance of the Courts which may fairly be treated as rules subsidiary to and explanatory of the central rule contained in section 6; and the Act so treats them. In this perspective they are not entitled to the elaborate detailed expression given to them in the English Act. Explanations I and II accordingly reproduce section 2 of the English Act in a condensed form.

Report of the Select Committee.—We have transposed clause 6 so as to make it clause 5; and we have transformed clauses 7 and 8 into Explanations attached to clause 5 (original clause 5) we consider that this re-arrangement will make it clearer that the sharing of profits gross return etc., is strong evidence of partnership though not in itself conclusive evidence. The clauses as originally arranged, might have had the effect of diminishing the value of these facts as evidence.

7 Where no provision is made by contract between the partners for the duration of their partnership or for the determination of their partnership, the partnership is "partnership at will."

Notes.—The English law uses the expression "partnership at will" in section 27, but does not contain any definition of "partnership at will" in section 26. It merely paraphrases the expression in these terms—"Where no fixed term has been agreed

England, however, rejected the contention and held that as the duration of the partnership was provided for in the partnership agreement, it was a partnership for a fixed term [Moss v Elphick, (1910) 1 K B. 846]. To get over the difficulty felt in Particular partnership 8. A person may become a partner with another person in particular adventures or undertakings

Notes—This is new matter and is inserted to meet cases which are probably much more frequent in India than in England. The practice of establishing "particular partnership" is much favoured by Indian firms with numerous branches, and the practice should not be hampered by doubts regarding the extent of the liabilities of the "particular partner."

The note under clause 4 mentions the three elements in the definition of partnership. The application of these tests to explanatory clauses following affords some estimate of the value of the definition, as these explanatory clauses are all based on

RELATIONS OF PARTNERS TO ONE ANOTHER

9. Partners are bound to carry on the business of the firm to the greatest common advantage, to be just and faithful to each other, and to render true accounts and full information of all things affecting the firm to any partner or his legal representative

Notes—This section is section 257 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. It appears in the English Act, 1890, in a severely pruned form in section 28, on which Underhill comments that "it seems regrettable that the provisions of the Act of 1890 do not affirm this particular general principle, and the omission is the more remarkable because section 257 of the Indian Contract Act provides that the partners are to carry on the business of the partnership for the greatest common advantage, to be just and faithful to each other, and to render accounts etc. A broad general principle of this kind is just what one would expect to find in a Code, but it is not to be found in the English Act which treats the subject matter inadequately, by a

Notes—Sub-clause (1) expresses the rule contained in section 19 of the English Act as amended by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1893. The clause is an example of a law, namely that a person may make his own arrangements amongst himself or herself. It will allow arrangements to be made from time to time for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of sections V and VI, which are Sections 12 and 13—Section 24 of the English Act has been split up, for greater ease in reading into these two clauses under which the subject matter has been re-arranged under the heads of the conduct of the business and rules of mutual liability. The only provision omitted is clause 7 of the English section, which has been included in clause 31. The clauses cover most of the matter in section 253 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

CHAPTER IV.

RELATIONS OF PARTNERS TO THIRD PARTIES

Partner to be agent of the firm 18 Subject to the provisions of this Act, a partner is the agent of the firm for the purposes of the business of the firm

Notes.—This Chapter is mostly taken up with the statement and development of the principle that each partner is the agent of the firm. In arrangement it differs widely from the corresponding part of the English Act. It elaborates some of the provisions of that part and omits others and introduces some new matter.

Clause 19 begins with the first principle given in section 5 of the English Act—that every partner is an agent of the firm. It also contains the most important principle in section 5 of the English Act which defines the general extent of a partner's agency, namely, that an act of a partner which—

- (a) is done to carry on business of the kind carried on by the firm, and
- (b) is done in the way usual in such a business

binds the firm. The remainder of the English section is contained in clause 20.

The second paragraph in sub clause (1) of clause 19 introduces a convenient term intended to avoid confusion when references are made to the authority of a partner as agent. The authority defined in the first paragraph of the sub-clause has been variously designated as 'implied', 'ordinary', 'apparent' and 'ostensible' and it is sometimes not clear what the exact meaning of these terms may be. The word 'implied' is favoured by Lindley and seems to be the most suitable as the kind of agency contemplated is one which flows from, or is implied by, partnership of partner.

Sub clause (2) has been extracted from section 5 of the English Act and contains an exhaustive account of implied authority. The

Clause (a) reproduces Stead v Salt, (3 Bing 101) which has been followed in All 135

Clause (b) is Alliance Bank Ltd v Kearsley, (L. R. 6 C P 433)

Clause (c) is a proposition on the law of agency contained in many rulings, see Lindley page 195

Clause (d) is contrary to Harwood v Edwards, cited by Lindley at page 354, a case which seems to be unreported. It seems unreasonable to hold that a partner cannot compromise a claim by the firm but that he can withdraw a suit. The clause as drafted seems best suited to Indian conditions.

Clause (e)—This is Hambidge v De la Crouse (3 C 11 742)

Clause (f) follows Sharp v Milligan, (22 Beav 606) and 16 Bom 568 setting aside 19 Mad 471

Clause (g) is covered by Harrison v Jackson, (7 T. R. 207)

Clause (h) is from Singleton v Knight (13 A. C 788)

We are equally divided on the value and soundness of this sub clause, but have agreed to let it stand in the Bill as its deletion will be a simple matter for the Legislature. Those of us who would retain it argue as follows—

On the other hand, those of us who would delete the sub clause argue as follows:—

'The sub clause assumes that in the contemplation of the Legislature the exercise of these powers is not a usual method of carrying on business by a partner or partners. We do not think that there is any warrant for such a general assumption. A close examination of the decided cases, cited in Lindley shows that, in regard to some of the points they are based upon the historical accident of subject in Story in section 114 points to the conclusion that to some extent the rule is based, not upon any intrinsic principle of partnership law but upon the ancient reason that it is not right to remove any matter from the cognisance of the established Courts of justice. These Courts are best equipped to investigate the merits of a case by proper legal proof and testimony; whereas the equipment of arbitrators is slender. From the note in Story under section 114 we gather that some of the American Courts have refused to lay down any such general restriction and have of the power to carry on business in the usual way. Clause (c) deals with compromising or relinquishing any claim or portion of a claim. Story in section 115 states it as an undoubted proposition of law that a partner may release or even compound or compromise a partnership debt. In 3 C B 743 at page 745 Maule J states the law to be that a partner may release debts because he has authority to receive them. The decision in 11 M & W page 84 also lends support to the view that a partner operates as a bar to the action. The cases cited in Lindley at page 195 in support of the proposition that a partner has no authority to compromise do not seem to

'As regards sub clause (2) of clause 19 [now sub clause (2) of this section] it is clear from the opinions received that, in Calcutta particularly, it is a trade custom that the partners make contracts of sale containing a clause referring disputes to arbitration. It may also perhaps lay open to the firm the risk of being bound by contracts to some extent, and we propose to delete it in the absence of any usage or custom of trade to the contrary. Section 25—This is the general statement of the liability of a partner for the liabilities of the firm. The Contract Act 1872, merely provide that each partner is liable for the firm but does not say that the partners jointly and severally liable for contractual liabilities and section 12 makes them jointly and severally liable for tortious liabilities. Section 43 of the Indian Act makes joint promisors generally liable jointly and severally and this general principle has been applied to partnership liabilities in India (6 Bom 706, 17 Bom 6). The clause expresses this principle. The liability relates to both contracts and torts.

view of section 11 of the Indian Contract Act and the decision of the Privy Council in Mahori Bibis cases as to the general incapacity of an infant to enter into a contract we feel that there is no justification, with reference to the law of partnership only for departing from this principle of the Indian law, and thereby unsettling it. At the same time it has been the law since 1866 that a minor may be admitted to

does not in express terms, provide that the minor on attaining age becomes a partner, if he does not repudiate his connection with the firm within a reasonable time though this principle is implied in section 248. The Act is also defective in omitting to lay down fully the rights and remedies of a minor sharer as such Clause 30 while retaining the existing law as to the minor's position is intended to remedy the defects above pointed out. Sub clause (1) makes it clear that a minor cannot be a partner in a firm, but that he can be admitted to the benefits of partnership and that he can be given this footing in the firm only by the express consent of the partners, and cannot be thrust upon them, for he is a potential partner and his introduction should be subject to the consent of all the part

If he chooses the former he need take no definite action and he becomes personally liable as a partner as if he had been a partner from the date of his admission to the benefits of partnership. If he chooses the latter course, he can make his choice effective only by giving public notice within a reasonable time that he has severed his connection with existing partners.

(2) Subject to the provisions of section 30, a person who is introduced as a partner into a firm does not thereby become liable for any act of the firm done before he became a partner

Notes—Though Chapter VII on the Registration of Firms is the most important departure in the Bill as regards substance, this Chapter is the most important departure as regards form. As mentioned in our Report, it contains no material change in the law of partnership, but collects together and sets out in a convenient form all rules relating to the coming in of a partner, and all rules relating to the going out of a partner in so far as these rules do not relate to the dissolution of the firm or to the consequences of dissolution. As a result of the limitation on the selection of these provisions they relate chiefly to what is referred to in various places in the Bill as a "change in the firm" that is, a change in the constitution of the firm which has not resulted in the dissolution of the firm. However a few provisions such as clause 34 (1) and clause 37 are of general application, that is they apply where the firm continues without dissolution and also where a dissolved firm is reconstituted and carries on the business with the property and assets of the dissolved firm. For this reason the Chapter is given the non-committal title of "Incoming and Outgoing partners" rather than the restricted title of "Change in Firm" which would otherwise have been more suitable.

Section 31—The main proposition in sub clause (1) comes from clause (7) of section 24 of the English Act and sub-clause (6) of section 253 of the Indian Act. The general idea is that the consent of all existing partners is required to the introduction of a new partner, in order that the firm may work harmoniously. This is a fundamental principle of the law of partnership Crawshaw v Mdale, 1 Swan 495, 539. An — — — — — to — — — — — G : — — — — — the — — — — —

Introducing a new partner at any time or juncture the contract will be binding on the partners even though when the time comes or the juncture arises one or more of the partners may be unwilling to accept the new partner

Sub clause (2) relates to the liability of a new partner for the existing debts of the firm and is taken from section 17 (1) of the English Act and the latter portion of 279 of the Indian Act. The sub clause maintains the peculiar higher liability under sub clause (6) of clause 30 of the minor potential partner who elects to become a full partner. The clause makes no provision for the liability of the new partner for future debts of the firm as this is covered by the general provision of clause 25

32 (1) A partner may retire—

Retirement of a partner.

- (a) with the consent of all the other partners,
- (b) in accordance with an express agreement by the partners or
- (c) where the partnership is at will, by giving notice in writing to all the other partners of his intention to retire

(2) A retiring partner may be discharged from any liability to any third party for acts of the firm done before his retirement by an agreement made by him with such third party and the partners of the reconstituted firm, and such agreement may be implied by a course of dealing between such third party and the reconstituted firm after he had knowledge of the retirement

(3) Notwithstanding the retirement of a partner from a firm, he and the partners continue to be liable as partners to third parties for any act done by any of them which would have been an act of the firm if done before the retirement, until public notice is given of the retirement :

Provided that a retired partner is not liable to any third party who deals with the firm without knowing that he was a partner

(4) Notices under sub-section (3) may be given by the retired partner or by any partner of the reconstituted firm

Notes—In this clause the word "retire" is properly confined to cases where a partner withdraws from a firm and the remaining partners continue to carry on the business of the firm without dissolution of partnership as between them. It does not cover the case where a partner withdraws from a firm by dissolving it which should properly be referred as a dissolution and not as a retirement.

According to Lindley (page 698) the right of a partner to retire is very restricted. This clause appears to widen the right as set out in Lindley's three rules, but in fact it does so to a very small extent. Clause (a) corresponds to Lindley's first rule and covers cases where a partner is allowed to retire at any time on an amicable arrangement then made with his partners. Clause (b) appears to be new but it is probably included in Lindley's first rule. It covers cases where the retirement is made in pursuance of a previous arrangement consented to by all, as is frequently done in the articles of partnership. Here however at the time the retirement occurs the partner has the right to retire whether or not his co-partners are still agreeable. Clause (c) is merely a very slight extension of the right of a partner to dissolve a partnership at will by notice (vide clause 43 of the Bill and section 32 of the English Act). It is hoped that this clause will soften to some extent the hard rule laid down by Lindley on page 697 that "there is only one method by which a partner can retire from a firm without the consent of his co-partners, and that is by dissolving the firm". The clause will allow a partner in a partnership at will to retire from the firm without dissolving it if he has no claim against the firm or thinks his claim will be settled amicably without a winding up. His right to dissolve the firm if he considers that to be the better course, is unimpaired.

Sub clause (2) represents sub section (3) of section 17 of the Partnership Act, 1890. Sub section (2) of that section is covered by clause 25. Vide Newman v Clay, 14 East 239, Court v Berlin (1897) 2 Q B 396.

Sub-clause (3) represents section 36 of the English Act, confined to the case of

ew v Wyatt, 5 C & P 391
177 Vol XXII, page 38

33 (1) A partner may not be expelled from a firm by any majority of the partners, save in the exercise in good faith of powers conferred by contract between the partners.

Expulsion of a partner

(2) The provisions of sub sections (2), (3) and (4) of section 32 shall apply to an expelled partner as if he were a retired partner.

Notes—This clause regards expulsion in the same way as clause 32 regards retirement, that is it makes the proper assumption that the firm continues after the expulsion without a dissolution of partnership as between the remaining partners.

Sub clause (1) embraces section 36 of the English Act and also the rule in Blisset v Daniel (10 Hare 493) whereby a power of expulsion must be exercised bona fide. A full discussion of this rule is given on pages 516 and 517 of Lindley. See also Barnes v Youngs, (1898) 1 Ch 414, Carmichael v Evans, (1904) 1 Ch 486.

It must not be exercised for the exclusive benefit of one or more partners individually but for the benefit of the whole partnership. Blisset v Daniel, 10 Hare 493 (522), Stuart v Gladstone (1879) 10 Ch D 626, 650, Halsbury Vol XXII page 88. A partner who is to be expelled should be given opportunity to meet the charge against him. Barnes v Youngs, Supra, Wood v Wood L R 9 Exch 190, Russell v Russell (1880) 14 Ch D. 471, see also 110 Ind Cas 500.

Sub clause (2) places an expelled partner on precisely the same footing as a retired partner as regards his liabilities for existing and future debts of the firm. There seems to be no valid reason for making any difference.

84 (1) Where a partner in a firm is adjudicated an insolvent he ceases to be a partner on the date on which the order of adjudication is made, whether or not the insolvency of a partner of the firm is thereby dissolved.

(2) Where under a contract between the partners the firm is not dissolved by the adjudication of a partner as an insolvent, the estate of a partner so adjudicated is not liable for any act of the firm and the firm is not liable for any act of the insolvent, done after the date on which the order of adjudication is made.

Notes—The Indian law on the effect of the insolvency of a single partner is meagre. It is contained in section 254 (2) of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and in the effect that when a partner has been adjudicated an insolvent any other partner may sue for the dissolution of the firm. The provisions of the Partnership Act, 1890, contain more details but not many. Sub section (1) of section 33 runs—'Subject to any agreement between the partners, every partnership is dissolved as regards all the partners by the death or bankruptcy of any partner.' From this it follows that when there is an agreement that the firm shall continue the bankrupt partner drops out and the remaining partners continue as such without a dissolution of their partnership. Section 38, which provides for the continuance of the authority of the partners after dissolution for the purposes of the winding up of the affairs of the firm, states as a broad exception that 'the firm is in no case bound by the acts of a partner, who has become bankrupt.' This seems to be a rule which applies generally to bankrupt partners and not merely to such partners in this special circumstance of the winding up of the firm as may be seen from Thomason v Frere, (10 East 418). The view is stated clearly by Lindley on page 823. On general grounds also it seems reasonable that an insolvent who is incapable of obtaining credit for himself should not be allowed to obtain credit for or pledge the credit of a firm. Clause 34 proceeds on these lines adopting them to the case of the continuing firm.

Sub clause (1) states the principle that the insolvency of a partner severs his antecedates the dissolution back to the act would be impracticable in India, and be followed in this matter. Hence the has been selected as the date on which the insolvent ceases to be a partner. It is the adjudication and not the presentation of the petition which dissolves the partnership. Ex parte Smith, 5 Ves 295. The estate of the bankrupt after that date ceases to be liable for the partnership debts incurred after the bankruptcy, though the party dealing with the firm is ignorant of it. Halsbury, Vol XXII, p 87.

Sub clause (2) contains two rules. (1) is laid down that the estate of the insolvent is not liable for any act of the firm done after the date of adjudication. This rule is taken from sub section (3) of section 36 of the English Act, and it is justified by the general consideration that the adjudication of the insolvent is a notorious event and no further notice thereof is required either to old or to new customers of the firm. (2) It also contains the complementary rule that the firm is not bound by the acts of the insolvent after the date of adjudication. This is based on Thomason v Frere, cited above.

85 Where under a contract between the partners the firm is not dissolved by the death of a partner, the estate of a partner is not liable for any act of the partner deceased partner is not liable for any act of the firm done after his death.

Notes—Clause 35 is derived from sub section (3) of section 36 of the English Act. Like clause 34, it is confined to the case where the firm continues without dissolution. Where dissolution has occurred, these matters are provided for in clauses 45 and 47.

Notes—Clause 37 is section 42 of the English Act with a few verbal changes, and which the Indian standard rate of six per cent substituted for the English standard rate of five per cent.

A partner continuing the business with partnership assets after dissolution must account for profits up to the winding up of the concern Crashway v Collins, 2 Russ 325; Halsbury, Vol XXII, p 63.

38 A continuing guarantee given to a firm, or to a third party in respect of the transactions of a firm is in the absence of agreements to the contrary, revoked as to future transactions from the date of any change in the constitution of the firm.

Notes—This is section 18 of the English Act and section 260 of the Indian Act.

CHAPTER VI

DISSOLUTION OF A FIRM

Dissolution of a firm 39. The dissolution of partnership between all the partners of a firm is called the "dissolution of the firm."

Notes—This is section 39 of the English Act and section 261 of the Indian Act.

Clause 39 contains the definition of 'dissolution of a firm'. This phrase is used in preference to 'dissolution of partnership' which has an element of ambiguity as it may refer to the severance of the connection of one partner with the firm, or to the complete breakdown of the relation of partnership between all the partners. Only the latter meaning is dealt with in this Chapter. The severance of the connection of one partner only is dealt with in the previous Chapter—Notes on Clauses.

Dissolution by agreement 40. A firm may be dissolved with the consent of all the partners or in accordance with a contract between the partners.

Notes—S 40 covers the case where all the partners agree that the firm should then be dissolved, and also the case where the dissolution occurs in pursuance of a contract previously made for example, in the articles of partnership.

Compulsory dissolution 41 A firm is dissolved—

(a) by the adjudication of all the partners or of all the partners but one as insolvent, or

(b) by the happening of any event which makes it unlawful for the business of the firm to be carried on or for the partners to carry it on in partnership.

Provided that, where more than one separate adventure or undertaking is carried on by the firm, the illegality of one or more shall not of itself cause the dissolution of the firm in respect of its lawful adventures and undertakings.

Notes—S 41 relates to events whose occurrence unavoidably dissolves a firm. Clause (a) is new, but needs no comment. Clause (b) is section 34 of the English Act and section 255 of the Indian Act. The proviso incorporates a suggestion made by Lindley at page 682—Notes on Clauses.

Clause (b)—Whenever on the happening of any event the partnership business itself or the carrying on of that by the members of the firm in partnership becomes illegal, the partnership is ipso facto dissolved. Halsbury, Vol XXII page 87 citing Exposito v Bowden 7 E & B 763 Ex Ch, Griswold v Waddington, 15 John Rep 57

Dissolution in the happening of certain contingencies 42 Subject to contract between the partners a firm is dissolved—

- (a) if constituted for a fixed term, by the expiry of that term,
- (b) if constituted to carry out one or more adventures or undertakings by the completion thereof,
- (c) by the death of a partner, and
- (d) by the adjudication of a partner as an insolvent

Notes—S 42 relates to events whose occurrence will dissolve the firm if there is no agreement to the contrary. Clause (a) is clause (a) of section 32 of the English Act, clause (b) is clause (b) of that section, clauses (c) and (d) are sub section (1) of section 33 of that Act—Notes on Clauses

43 (1) Where the partnership is at will, the firm may be dissolved by any partner giving notice in writing to all the other partners of his intention to dissolve the firm

(a) The firm is dissolved as from the date mentioned in the notice as the date of dissolution or, if no date is so mentioned, as from the date of the communication of the notice

Notes—Section 43 relates to the dissolution of partnership at will. It is taken from clause (c) and the last paragraph of section 32 of the English Act see also Crawshay v Maule, 1 Swan 495 508 Peacock v Peacock 16 Ves 49 Heath v Sansom 4 B & Ad 172 175, Miles v Thomas 9 Sim 606

Clause (2)—Unsworth v Jordan (1896) W N 2

Dissolution by the Court 44 At the suit of a partner, the Court may dissolve a firm on any of the following grounds, namely—

(a) that a partner has become of unsound mind, in which case the suit may be brought as well by the next friend of the partner who has become of unsound mind as by any other partner,

(b) that a partner other than the partner suing has become in any way permanently incapable of performing his duties as partner,

(c) that a partner, other than a partner suing is guilty of conduct which is likely to affect prejudicially the carrying on of the business, regard being had to the nature of the business,

(d) that a partner, other than the partner suing wilfully or persistently commits firm or relating

partners to carry on the business in partnership with him,

(e) that a partner other than the partner suing has in any way transferred the whole of his interest in the firm to a third party, or has allowed his share to be charged under the provisions of rule 49 of Order XXI of the First Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 or has allowed it to be sold in the recovery of arrears of land revenue or of any dues recoverable as arrears of land revenue due by the partner,

(f) that the business of the firm cannot be carried on save at a loss, or

(g) on any other ground which renders it just and equitable that the firm should be dissolved

Notes—S 44 gives in detail the grounds on which a partner may sue for dissolution of the firm. Clauses the six clauses—sub section (2) of section that sub section and is

The English law on the effect of the assignment by a partner of his share is not clear; (Lindley, pages 694-5); and it is desirable to adhere to the Indian law on this point—Notes on Clauses

Clause (a)—Jones v. Noy, 2 My. & K. 125 The insanity must be permanent Ibid

Clause (b)—Whitwell v Arthur, 35 Beav 140

Clause (c)—Dissolution can be granted by Court for misconduct of a partner But regard must be had to the nature of the partnership

Clause (d)—This clause includes breach of partnership agreement and unreasonable conduct Vide Goodman v Whitcomb, 1 Jack & W 589; Loscombe v Russell, 4 Sim 8, Anderson v Anderson, 25 Beav 199 Generally the Court interferes whenever the partnership is rendered impossible by the conduct of one partner. Taylor, 2 Ves 648; Beav, 56, Halib. confidence has been lost. v Shout, 33 Beav 502, Jennings v Jennings, 21 Beav 402

Clause (f)—Dissolution is granted by Court where there is a failure to make profits Jennings v Baddeley, 3 K. & E J 78, Basley v Ford, 13 Sim. 495, Re Suburban Hotel Co 2 Ch App 737 "If the purposes of the partnership cannot be carried into effect with any reasonable prospect of profit, the Court can, and does, dissolve the partnership" Wilson v Church, 13 Ch D 1 C A

Clause (g)—The Court may dissolve a partnership in any cases where circumstances have arisen which in its opinion, render it just and equitable to do so Halsbury, Vol XXII, p 94

45. (1) Notwithstanding the dissolution of a firm, the partners continue to be liable as such to third parties for any act done by any of them which would have been an act of the firm if done before the dissolution, until public notice is given of the dissolution

Provided that the estate of a partner who dies, or who is adjudicated an insolvent, or of a partner who not having been known to the person dealing with the firm to be a partner, retires from the firm, is not liable under this section for acts done after the date on which he ceases to be a partner.

(2) Notices under sub section (1) may be given by any partner.

Notes—Clause 45 should be read with clauses 32, 33 and 34 Section 36 (1) of the English Act seems to confine the application of the principle contained in it to dealing with a firm after a change in its constitution nevertheless it is accepted law in England that after the dissolution of a firm persons dealing with its partners are entitled to assume that they continue to be each other's agents until notice is given of the dissolution There is indeed no reason to differentiate, in this matter of the presumed continuance of mutual agency between the case where a partner leaves the firm and the case where the firm is dissolved

The proviso reproduces sub section (3) of section 36 of the English Act—Notes on Clauses Old customers of a firm, who deal with it after its dissolution, are entitled to treat the former apparent partner as if he were still a partner if they have actual notice of the change Halsbury, 3 S L R 140, 68 Ind Cas 932, 115 Ind Cas 389—A I R 1927 Sind 155; 129 Ind Cas 588, 125 Ind Cas 442—A I R 1930 Bom 236, 121 Ind Cas 865—A I R 1930 Sind 83, 106 Ind Cas 904—1927 M W N 440 So far as the old partners are concerned, notice of the dissolution is not per se sufficient, but must be given specific notice and for others reasonable public notice is sufficient 93 Ind Cas 448 = A I R 1926 Sind 90 35

Roath v Quins, 7 Price 193 In some cases decided under s 264 of the Contract Act it was held that the retiring partner was not bound to give notice of any kind to a new partner who was unaware at the time of transaction that the retiring partner was a partner of the firm A I R 1930 Bom 407 The old section was held not to apply to cases of dormant partners nor to cases of death 100 Ind Cas 520, 5 Bom L R 366 As to liability of a retiring partner giving no notice, Vide 3 Bom L R 484 97 Ind Cas 653, 93 Ind Cas 448

46 On the dissolution of a firm every partner or his representative is entitled, as against all the other partners or their representatives to have the property of the business wound up after firm applied in payment of the debts and liabilities of the firm and to have the surplus distributed among the partners or their representatives according to their rights

Notes—Clause 46 is section 39 of the English Act, less the last thirty words which seem unnecessary It affirms the right of partners or their representatives to a share of the net assets of the firm after the dissolution of the firm Subject to any have the assets sold to provide a ment of the rights of the partners see also Wild v Milne 26 Beav Bardon v Barkens, 3 Giff 412

47 After the dissolution of a firm the authority of each partner to bind the firm, and the other mutual rights and obligations of the partners, continue notwithstanding the dissolution, so far as may be necessary to wind up the affairs of the firm and to complete transactions begun but unfinished at the time of the dissolution, but not otherwise

Continuing a u t h o r i t y of partners for purposes of winding up

Provided that the firm is in no case bound by the acts of a partner who has been adjudicated insolvent, but this proviso does not affect the liability of any person who has after the adjudication represented himself or knowingly permitted himself to be represented as a partner of the insolvent

Notes—Clause 47 follows section 38 of the English Act —

"Where the partnership business is in one sense at an end, still you have not every thing necessarily be carried on every thing belonging to it Cruik way v Collins 15 Ves 218, Boote 465 Wood v Braddick Taunt 104

105, Halsbury v O'Neil p 90

48 In settling the accounts of a firm after dissolution, the following rules shall be observed —

Mode of settlement of accounts between partners shall be observed —

(a) Losses, including deficiencies of capital, shall be paid first out of profits, next out of capital, and lastly, if necessary, by the partners individually in the proportions in which they were entitled to share profits,

(b) The assets of the firm, including any sums contributed by the partners to make up deficiencies of capital, shall be applied in the following manner and order,—

(i) in paying the debts of the firm to third parties,

- (ii) in paying to each partner rateably what is due to him from the firm for advances as distinguished from capital ,
- (iii) in paying to each partner rateably what is due to him on account of capital , and
- (iv) the residue, if any, shall be divided among the partners in the proportions in which they were entitled to share profits

Notes—This is the "accounting" clause and is most important. It is copied with only very slight verbal alterations, from section 44 of the English Act and requires little explanation. That section has stood with success the incessant and vigilant scrutiny of lawyers, accountants and business men in England for nearly forty years and may safely be followed—Notes on Clauses

49 Where there are joint debts due from the firm, and also separate debts due from any partner, the property of the firm shall be applied in the first instance in payment of the debts of the firm, and, if there is any surplus, then the share of the separate debts or paid to be applied first in the payment of the payment of the debts of the firm

Notes—Clause 49 reproduces section 262 of the Indian Contract Act. Although partnership property has annexed to it a permanent liability for partnership debts, yet there is nothing in law which prevents partner from disposing of it as they like or allowing it and obliges them to preserve it a creditors of the partnership. 54 I of bona fide purchaser from surviving 393 After dissolution the relationship between surviving and former partner is fiduciary. Ibid Surviving partner is entitled to dispose of property in connection with winding up 126 Ind Cas 97

50 Subject to contract between partners, the provisions of clause (a) of section 16 shall apply to transactions by any surviving partner or by the representatives of a deceased partner, undertaken after the firm is dissolved on account of the death of a partner and before its affairs have been completely wound up.

Personal profits earned after dissolution

Provided that where any partner or his representative has bought the goodwill of the firm, nothing in this section shall affect his right to use the firm name

Notes—Clause 50 is sub section (2) of section 29 of the English Act with necessary verbal changes

51 Where a partner has paid a premium on entering into partnership for a fixed term, and the firm is dissolved before the expiration of that term otherwise than by the death of a partner, he shall be entitled to repayment of the premium or of such part thereof as may be reasonable, regard being had to the terms upon which he became a partner and to the length of time during which he was a partner, unless—

- (a) the dissolution is mainly due to his own misconduct, or
- (b) the dissolution is in pursuance of an agreement containing no provision for the return of the premium or any part of it

Notes—Clause 51 and 52 are sections 40 and 41 of the English Act with a few verbal changes. "The principle upon which the Court interferes is that the consideration in respect of which the money is paid, fails and is not obtained by the person who pays the money in consequence of an unforeseen interruption." Per Stuart V C in Freeland v Stansfield 2 Sur & G 479, see also Tattersall v Groote, 2 Brox & P 131, Bullock v Robinson, 29 Ch D 170, Halbury, Vol XXII, P. 94

52 Where a contract creating partnership is rescinded on the ground of the fraud or misrepresentation of any of the parties thereto, the party entitled to rescind is without prejudice to any other right, entitled—

(a) to a lien on, or a right of retention of, the surplus of the assets of the firm remaining after the debts of the firm have been paid, for any sum paid by him for the purchase of a share in the firm and for any capital contributed by him,

(b) to rank as a creditor of the firm in respect of any payment made by him towards the debts of the firm, and

(c) to be indemnified by the partner or partners guilty of the fraud or misrepresentation against all the debts of the firm

Notes—The law was the same previous to the passing of the English Partnership Act (53 and 54 Vict c 39) s 41, Vide Maycock v Beaton, 13 Ch D 384, Adam v Newbegg, 13 App Cas 308

53 After a firm is dissolved, every partner or his representative may in the absence of a contract between the partners to the contrary, restrain any other partner or his representative from carrying on a similar business in the firm name or from using any of the property of the firm for his own benefit until the affairs of the firm have been completely wound up

Provided that where any partner or his representative has bought the goodwill of the firm, nothing in this section shall affect his right to use the firm name

Notes—Section 53 is complementary to clause 50. The earlier clause does not prevent a partner from using the firm connection, or property or his private ends during the winding up, but requires him to account for the profits he obtains thereby. The present clause gives a power to the other partners or their representatives to prevent any partner absolutely from using the firm name or property until the winding up is completed.—Notes on Clauses

54 Partners may, upon or in anticipation of the dissolution of the firm, make an agreement that some or all of them will not carry on a business similar to that of the firm within a specified period or within specified local limits, and notwithstanding anything contained in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, such agreement shall be valid if the restrictions imposed are reasonable

55 (1) In settling the accounts of a firm after dissolution, the goodwill shall, subject to contract between the partners, be included in the assets, and it may be sold either separately or along with other property of the firm

(2) Where the goodwill of a firm is sold after dissolution, a partner may carry on a business competing with that of the buyer and he may advertise such business, but, subject to agreement between him and the buyer, he may not—

(a) use the firm name,
(b) represent himself as carrying on the business of the firm, or
(c) solicit the custom of persons who were dealing with the firm before its dissolution.

(3) Any partner may, upon the sale of the goodwill of a firm, make an agreement with the buyer that such partner will not carry on any business similar to that of the firm within a specified period or within specified local limits, and, notwithstanding anything contained in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, such agreement shall be valid if the restrictions imposed are reasonable

Notes—Clause 54 does not profess to be an exhaustive codification of all the judicial rulings on the difficult subject of goodwill. It includes only the outstanding rules, and does not introduce the various refined modifications and qualifications disclosed by a study of the English case law appertaining thereto. The clause introduces a subject which so far has not found its way into the Indian Statute-book, and only to a very small extent into the law reports; and it seems advisable, to begin with to state only the broadest rules and to find out by experience how far they require modification and qualification to suit Indian conditions.

The term "goodwill" has been defined in various ways but never quite successfully, and it is not proposed to make the attempt here. It is sufficient that there is a business which is known to the public, and the Bill uses this well known term to denote the consequences which ordinarily follow the sale of a business. The discussion of goodwill is given by Lindley on pages 536 to 547.

Goodwill is the property of the firm, and not of the individual partner. It is a part of the firm's assets, and is transferred along with the business as part of the consideration. It is a further step, requiring little justification, but it is in accordance with English law as given in Jennings v Jennings [(1898) 1 Ch 378 at page 389], Hill v Farris, [(1905) 1 Ch 466] In re David and Mathews [(1899) 1 Ch 378] and other cases.

Sub-clause (2) begins with an important proposition defining the rights which are ordinarily retained by the seller of a goodwill. In spite of the sale of the goodwill of a firm any partner may set up a competing business, and may even advertise the business—Keir v Pollard, (8 Ch 91). This is in accordance with the principle that a man may trade as he chooses, in fair competition. To obtain a higher value for his goodwill by restricting this right, he must make a special bargain [see sub clause (3)]. Things which he may not do are given in (a), (b) and (c) of the sub clause.

- (a) he may not use the firm name—Churton v Douglas, (Johns, 174) ;
- (b) he may not represent himself as succeeding to the business of the firm (Ibid) ;
- (c) he may not solicit old customers of the firm—Trego v Hunt, (1896) A C 7].

These propositions are fairly simple and follow naturally from the sale of the goodwill of the business, for, though the seller is no longer a partner, he is still bound by a condition of these. In particular it does not include the proposition that where a partner has been adjudicated insolvent, he is not prevented from soliciting the old customers of the firm. This is based on Crutwell v Lye, (17 Ves 335) and Walker v Motiram, (19 Ch D 355), which are derived from the general consideration that the insolvent's share in the assets of the firm is for the benefit of his creditors, and he is therefore, bound by a condition of assignment for the cases the sale usually and the seller derives and elaborate the new statutory rules to this extent. In any case, these matters are expressed to be subject to agreement by the buyer and the partner concerned and, where there is no agreement, any loss to the seller arising from the absence of these refinements which are all in favour of the seller, will be balanced by the enhanced value of the goodwill

Sub clause (3), as with sub clause (2) of clause 36, is a modification of the general rule that each partner may carry on a business competing with that of which the goodwill has been sold, and is derived from explanation 1 in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872

CHAPTER VII

REGISTRATION OF FIRMS

56 The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that the provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to any province or to any part thereof specified in the notification

57. (1) The Local Government may appoint Registrars of Firms for the purposes of this Act and may define the areas within which they shall exercise their powers and perform their duties

(2) Every Registrar shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of section 21 of the Indian Penal Code *

Notes—Section 55 gives power to the Governor General in Council to exempt from the provisions of this Chapter any undeveloped area to which its provisions may not be suited

58 The registration of a firm may be effected at any time by sending by post or delivering to the Registrar of the area in which any place of business of the firm is situated or proposed to be situated, a statement in the prescribed form, and accompanied by the prescribed fee, stating—

- (a) the firm name,
- (b) the place or principal place of business of the firm,
- (c) the names of any other places where the firm carries on business,
- (d) the date when each partner joined the firm
- (e) the names in full and permanent addresses of the partners, and
- (f) the duration of the firm

The statement shall be signed by all the partners or, by their agents specially authorised in this behalf

(2) Each person signing the statement shall also verify it in the manner prescribed

(3) A firm name shall not contain any of the following words, namely —
 "Crown" "Emperor" "Empress," "Empire" "Imperial," "King,"
 "— — — — —" "— — — — —" "— — — — —" "— — — — —"
 ing the sanction approval or dia or a Local Government,
 nies his consent to the use
 writing under the hand of one of the Secretaries of the Government of India

Notes—Section 57, sub clause (1) is based on section 3 of the Registration of Business Names Act, 1916 (6 & 7 George V = 58) but it reduces the particulars to be furnished to the minimum required for the information and benefit of third parties Nothing of the internal economy of the firm need be disclosed beyond the mere names of the partners and the duration of their partnership

Sub-clause (3) is taken from sub-section (3) of section 11 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913

Report of the Select Committee—Under the original draft of sub clause (1), the validity of the registration of a firm could be disputed on the ground that its principal place of business does not lie within the area in which it has been registered To avoid this we propose that registration may be effected in any area in which the firm carries on business

'At the end of sub clause (1) we have inserted words which will allow partners residing at a distance to give special authority to agents to sign on their behalf applications for registration This amendment will cover the signing of statements under clause 59 —Report of the Select Committee

59 When the Registrar is satisfied that the provision of section 58 have been duly complied with, he shall record an entry of the statement in a register called the Register of Firms, and shall file the statement.

Notes—In connection with this clause and with the succeeding clauses two points should be noted —

(1) The Registrar is a mere recording officer and the entries he makes in the register will contain only the facts, or alleged facts of which he is given notice So long as any statement or notice is formally correct he has no discretion but to record them in the Register of Firms

(2) In addition to making the necessary entries in the Register of Firms he is required to file the original of every document submitted to him The original statement and all subsequent statements and notices will be filed together, so that all original papers relating to any firm will be conveniently found together in one file—Notes on Clauses

60 (1) When an alteration is made in the firm name or in the location of the principal place of business of a registered firm a statement may be sent to the Registrar accompanied by the prescribed fee, specifying the alteration, and signed and verified in the manner required under section 58.

(2) When the Registrar is satisfied that the provisions of sub-section (1) have been duly complied with, he shall amend the entry relating to the firm in the Register of Firms in accordance with the statement and shall file it along with the statement relating to the firm filed under section 59

Notes—Section 60 relates to the recording of alteration in the firm name and the principal place of business of the firm and it requires the same degree of formality as is required for the original statement under clause 58

61 When a registered firm discontinues business at any place or begins to carry on business at any place such place not being its principal place of business, any partner or agent of the firm may send intimation thereof to the Registrar, who shall make a note of such intimation in the entry relating to the firm in the Register of Firms and shall file the intimation along with the statement relating to the firm filed under section 60

Notes—Section 60 relates to the noting in the Register of the closing and opening of branches This is a less important matter and the clause permits of the notice being sent by any partner

62 When any partner in a registered firm alters his name or permanent address, an intimation of the alteration may be sent by any partner or agent of the firm to the Registrar, who shall deal with it in the manner provided in section 61

Notes—Section 62 relates to the noting of changes in the names and addresses of partners which is likewise performed in a less formal manner

63 (1) When a change occurs in the constitution of a registered firm any incoming, continuing or outgoing partner, and when a registered firm is dissolved any partner or agent of the firm may give notice to the Registrar before the dissolution or the agent of any partner authorised in this behalf may give notice to the Registrar

specifying the date thereof, and the Registrar shall make a record of the notice in the entry relating to the firm in the Register of Firms, and shall file the notice along with the statement relating to the firm filed under section 59

(2) When a minor who has been admitted to the benefits of partnership in

Recording of withdrawal of a minor a firm attains majority and elects to become or not to become a partner, and the firm is then a registered firm, he, or his agent specially authorised in this behalf, may give notice to the Registrar that he has or has not become a partner, and the Registrar shall deal with the notice in the manner provided in sub section (1)

Notes—Sub clause (1) should be read with clauses 32, 33, 45 and 71. These are important matters but as the law of partnership allows notice to customers to be given by any partner, this clause gives the same right, and does not require these important matters to be notified by all the partners acting together

Sub clause (2) should be read with clauses 30 and 71

64 (1) The Registrar shall have power at all times to rectify any mistake

Rectification of mistakes in order to bring the entry in the Register of Firms relating to any firm into conformity with the documents relating to that firm filed under this Chapter

(2) On application made by all the parties who have signed any document relating to a firm filed under this Chapter, the Registrar may rectify any mistake in such document or in the record or note thereof made in the Registrar of Firms

Notes—Section 64 confers on the Registrar a power to correct clerical errors, whether made by himself or by the persons sending him statements or notices

65 A Court deciding any matter relating to a registered firm may direct

Amendment of register by order of Court that the Registrar shall make any amendment in the entry in the Register of Firms relating to such firm which is consequential upon its decision, and the Registrar shall amend the entry accordingly

Notes—It has been mentioned under section 59 that the Registrar is a mere recording officer. He will have no power to enter into the accuracy of the statements contained in any document sent to him. Section 65 gives to the civil Courts the necessary power of correction in cases of disputes.—Notes on Clauses

Inspection of Registrar and filed documents 66 (1) The Register of Firms shall be open to inspection by any person on payment of such fee as may be prescribed

this Chapter shall be ment of such fee as

Notes—Sub clause (1) makes the register open to inspection by any person on application and on payment of a fee

Sub clause (2) makes the original documents filed by the Registrar open to inspection, but subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by rules. It is deemed inadvisable to allow untrammelled inspection by any member of the public of these important documents. The rules will probably require inspection to be carried out under some kind of supervision, and will require the person applying for inspection to show that he is in some way interested in the contents of the original document, and that inspection of the register itself is not sufficient for his purposes.—Notes on Clauses

67. The Registrar shall on application furnish to any person on payment

Grant of copies of such fee as may be prescribed, a copy, certified under his hand, of any entry or portion thereof in the Register of Firms

Notes—Section 67 gives an unrestricted right to any member of the public to obtain a certified copy of an entry in the register, on payment of the prescribed fee. This right does not extend to the original documents.

68. (1) Any statement, intimation of notice recorded or noted in the Rules of evidence

Register of Firms shall, as against any person

by whom or on whose behalf such statement, intimation or notice was signed, be conclusive proof of any fact therein stated.

(2) A certified copy of an entry relating to a firm in the Register of Firms may be produced in proof of the fact of the registration of such firm, and of the contents of any statement, intimation or notice recorded or noted therein.

Notes—Section 68 makes the original documents filed with the Registrar conclusive evidence of the facts contained therein, as against any person who has signed them. It also makes certified copies of entries in the register evidence of registration and of the contents of the originals.

69. (1) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract or conferred by

Effect of non registration

this Act shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of any person suing as a partner in a firm or to have been a partner in a firm, if the person suing is or has been shown

(2) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless the firm is registered and the persons suing are or have been shown in the Register of Firms as partners in the firm.

(3) The provisions of sub sections (1) and (2) shall apply also to a claim of set off or other proceeding to enforce a right arising from a contract, but shall not affect—

(a) the enforcement of any right to sue for the dissolution of a firm or for accounts of a dissolved firm or any right or power to realise the property of a dissolved firm, or

(b) the powers of an official assignee, receiver or Court under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909,* or the Provincial Insolvency Act 1920,† to realise the property of an insolvent partner.

(4) This section shall not apply—

(a) to firms or to partners in firms which have no place of business in British India, or whose places of business in British India, are situated in areas to which, by notification under section 56, this Chapter does not apply, or

PATENTS

Application for and Grant of Patent

3 (1) An application for a patent may be made by any person, whether he is a British subject or not, and whether alone or jointly with any other person

he is a British subject or not, and whether alone or jointly with any other person

(2) The application must be made in the prescribed form, and must be left at the Patent Office in the prescribed manner

(3) The application must contain a declaration to the effect that the applicant is in possession of an invention, whereof he, or in the case of a joint application, one at least of the applicants claims to be the true and first inventor or the legal representative or assign of such inventor and for which he desires to obtain a patent, and must be accompanied by a specification and by the prescribed fee

(4) Where the true and first inventor is not a party to the application, the application must contain a statement of his name and such particulars for his identification as may be prescribed, and the applicant must show that he is the legal representative or assign of such inventor.

Notes—This section corresponds to section 1 of the English Patents and Designs Act 7 Edw VII, Chapter 29 In case of joint application it must be stated which of the applicants is or are the true and first inventor or inventors Halsbury, Vol 22, p 153 A patent cannot be granted where the true and first inventor refuses the grant Hool v Riches, (1902) 19 R P C 127, Re C & C's Application, (1910) 21 R P C 454

4 (1) The specification must particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention and the manner in which the same is to be performed

nature of the invention and the manner in which the same is to be performed

(2) Where the Controller deems it desirable, he may require that suitable drawings shall be supplied with specification or at any time before the acceptance of the application, and such drawings shall be deemed to form part of the specification

(3) The specification must commence with the title, and must end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed

(4) If in any particular case the Controller considers that an application should be further ————— thing illustrating the invention or model or sample as he may require the application, but such model or part of the specification

Notes—This section corresponds to section 2 of the English Patents and Designs Act, 1907 7 Edw VII, Chap 29 The title mentioned in clause (3) is really a short statement of the invention Househill Coal and Iron Co v Nelson (1893) 1 Web Pat Cas 673—9 Cl & Fin 788 H L. The title should give a fair general description of the nature of the invention This obviously connotes that within certain limits it must not be too wide For instance, with regard to an invention consisting of an improved lamp a title "for an improved method of lighting cities town- and villages" was held to be too vague Halsbury, Vol 22, ¶ 155 citing Cochrane v Smethurst, 1 Stark 205 Campion v Benyon, (1821) 5 Moore P C 71, Felton v Greaves, (1829) 3 C & P 611, Derosne v Halper, (1835) 2 Cr M & R 476, Cook v Pearce, (1893) 8 Q B 1044, Hichels v Haylam (1844) 7 Mac & G 378

5 (1) The Controller shall examine every application, and if he considers that—

(a) the nature of the invention is not fairly described, or

(b) the application, specification, and drawing have not been prepared in the prescribed manner or

it shall not be competent for any person in a suit or other proceeding to take any objection to a patent on the ground that it has been granted for more than one invention

Notes—This section corresponds to section 14 of the English Patents and Designs Act, 1907

13 (1) A patent granted to the true and first inventor or his legal representative or assign shall not be invalidated by an application in fraud of him, or by protection obtained thereon or by any use or publication of the invention subsequent to that fraudulent application during the period of protection

(2) Where a patent has been revoked by the High Court on the ground that it has been obtained in fraud of the true and first inventor, or where the grant of a patent has been refused by the Controller under section 9 on the ground stated in clause (a) of subsection (1) of that section, the Controller may, on the application of the true inventor or his legal representative or assignee made in accordance with the provisions of this Act, grant to him a patent for the whole or any part of the invention and the patent so granted shall bear the same date as the patent so revoked or, in the case of a patent the grant of which has been refused the same date as would have been borne by the patent if it had been granted

Provided that no suit shall be brought for any infringement of the patent so granted committed, before the actual date when such patent was granted **

Notes—A patent granted to the true and first inventor cannot be invalidated by an application in fraud of him or by provisional protection obtained thereon Halsbury, Vol 22, p 179

Term of Patent

14 (1) The term limited in every patent for the duration thereof shall, save as otherwise expressly provided by this Act be "sixteen" years from its date.

† (1A) Any patent the original term of which had not expired on or before the 1st day of July, 1930 shall have effect as if the term mentioned therein was sixteen years instead of fourteen years and any license existing at that date which has been granted for the term of the patent shall be treated as having been granted for the term so extended if the licensee so desires

† (B) Where any party to a contract with the patentee or any other person entered into before the 1st day of January 1930 is subjected to loss or liability by reason of the extension of the term of any patent under this section, any District Court having jurisdiction may determine in what manner and by which parties such loss or liability shall be borne

(2) A patent shall, if the patentee fails to pay the fee, be deemed to have expired

Provided that where the expiration of the time for payment, applies to the Controller for an extension of time by any period not exceeding three months the patent shall on payment of such additional fee as may be prescribed be deemed to have been renewed

(3) If any proceeding is taken in respect of a patent committed after a failure to pay any fee within the time prescribed for the payment thereof the Court before which the proceeding is taken may, if it thinks fit, refuse to award any damages

15 (1) A patentee may,* present a petition to the Governor General in Council praying that his patent may be extended for a further term, but such petition must be left at the Patent Office at least six months before the time limited for the expiration of the patent, and must be accompanied by the prescribed fee, "and must be advertised by the patentee within the prescribed time and in the prescribed manner†"

(2) Any person may "within such time as may be prescribed and on payment of the prescribed fee,† give notice to the Controller of objection to the extension"

(3) Where a petition is presented under sub-section (1), the Governor General in Council may, as he thinks fit, dispose of the petition himself or refer it to a High Court for decision

(5) If a petition is presented to the Governor General in Council, or to the High Court to it, that the patentee has been made the Governor General in Council or the by order extend the term of the patent for a further term not exceeding "five"‡ or in exceptional cases "ten" § years, or may or for the grant of a new patent for such term as may be specified in the order and subject to the payment of such fees as may be prescribed, and containing any restriction, conditions and provisions which the Governor General in Council or the High Court as the case may be may think fit:

Provided that any patent so extended or granted shall, notwithstanding anything therein or in this Act cease if the inventor fails to pay before the expiration of each year the prescribed fee

(2) Save as otherwise expressly provided by this Act a patent of addition shall remain in force as long as the patent for the original invention remains in force, but no longer and in respect of a patent of addition no fees shall be payable for renewal.

Provided that if the patent for the original invention is revoked, then the patent of addition shall, if the authority by which it is revoked so orders become an independent patent and the fees payable, and the dates when they

(3) The grant of a patent of addition shall be conclusive evidence that the invention is a proper subject for a patent of addition and the validity of the patent shall not be questioned on the ground that the invention ought to have been the subject of an independent patent

Notes—This amendment introduces a new provision which will enable a patentee to add to his original patent improvements having the same term as the original patent without incurring the expense involved in taking out separate patents—
Notes on Clauses

16 (1) Where any patent has ceased owing to the failure of the patentee to pay any prescribed fee within the prescribed time, the patentee may apply to the Controller in the prescribed manner for an order for the restoration of the patent

THE POST OFFICE CASH CERTIFICATES ACT, 1917.

ACT NO. XVIII OF 1917.

RECEIVED THE ASSENT OF THE G G ON THE 19TH SEPTEMBER, 1917

An Act to restrict the transfer of Post Office 5 years Cash Certificates and to provide for the payment of Certificates standing in the name of deceased persons

WHEREAS it is expedient to restrict the transfer of Post Office 5 year Cash Certificates and to provide for the payment of Certificates standing in the name of deceased persons ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Notes—The form of Post Office Cash Certificates contains the following inscription printed thereon, "Not transferable except with the permission of the Post Master General" and non transferability has from the first been a condition attaching to the certificate. This restriction, however, in the absence of specific legislation would not be operative against the general right of transfer of all actionable claims conferred by section 130 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The present Bill provides for the validation of the abovementioned restriction except where the Cash Certificates form part of the estates of the deceased persons or are necessarily transferable by law, i.e., as in the case of the holder's insolvency. Opportunity has at the same time been taken to place the payment of Cash Certificates belonging to the estates of the deceased persons on the same footing as Government Savings Bank deposits forming part of the estates of such persons—

REFERENCE TO HIGH COURT

if in any suit or in any such proceeding in which the amount or value of the subject matter exceeds five hundred rupees any such question arises upon which the Court entertains reasonable doubt and either party so requires the Small Cause Court shall draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which there is a difference of opinion or on which doubt is entertained and refer such statement with its own opinion on the point for the opinion of the High Court, and the provisions of sections 619 to 621 of the Code of Civil Procedure[†] shall so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply as if such reference had been made under section 617 of the said Code.

(2) When the Small Cause Court refers any question for the opinion of the High Court as provided in sub-section (1) it shall either reserve judgment or give judgment contingent upon such opinion."

Notes—This section enables the Small Causes Court to make a reference to the High Court on any question of law, or usage having the force of law or the construction of document, but not on any question of fact. 2 Bom L R 469, 17 Ind Cas 93, 30 C 458. The Presidency Small Cause Court ought not to make general indefinite references to the High Court under this section. The case stated must relate to point of law or usage having the force of law, and the question referred must be precise. Otherwise the High Court would send back the reference for amendment. 15 B 376. The language of this section shows that the party requiring the Judge to make a reference to the High Court must do so before the Judge has delivered his judgment as it gives the Judge the option, on being required, either of postponing his judgment or delivering it contingent on the opinion of the High Court. 16 B 618. The refusal of a new trial subject to the opinion of the High Court on certain points referred to it is not a 'contingent judgment' under this section. 11 C 298. The conditions of this section ought to be strictly complied with, before the High Court can give opinion on the matter referred. 30 C 458. The Presidency Small Cause Courts having jurisdiction to try questions of title which arise incidentally in a suit before it. It may also try such a question where it is the principal question. But it ought not to try such a question where that is the sole and the only point in the suit. 31 C 1001. The question whether a cheque has been presented within a reasonable time has to be determined with regard to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade and of bankers and the facts of the particular case. Such a question is clearly a question of fact and not of law, and it is not therefore a question which the Small Cause Court can refer to the opinion of the High Court under the section. 4 M L T 89.

- (a) his debts amount to five hundred rupees or
- (b) he has been arrested and imprisoned in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money, or
- (c) an order of attachment in execution of such a decree has been made and is subsisting against his property

(2) A debtor in respect of whom an order of adjudication whether made under this Act or under the Provincial Insolvency Act 1920 has been annulled owing to his failure to apply or to prosecute an application for his discharge shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition without the leave of the Court by which the order of adjudication was annulled. Such Court shall not grant leave unless it is satisfied either that the debtor was prevented by any reasonable cause from presenting or prosecuting his application as the case may be or that the petition is founded on facts substantially different from those contained in the petition on which the order of adjudication was made

(3) On the making of the order admitting his petition a debtor shall—

(a) unless the Court otherwise directs, produce all his books of account, and

(b) file such lists of creditors and debtors and afford such assistance to the Court as may be prescribed, failing which the Court may dismiss his petition.

So far as movable property is concerned, the principle is that a creditor who after the commencement of an English bankruptcy and not by virtue of any charge prior to the bankruptcy or of a judgment in rem obtains payment out of the bankrupt's movables in a non-British country must account for such payment if he seeks to receive dividends on the residue if any of his debt but, may otherwise retain it and this whether or not the payment was obtained by legal proceeding or whether or not the title of the trustees in bankruptcy was asserted in such proceedings if any, but that if he is a British creditor and obtains payment out of bankrupt's movables in a non-British country, he must pay over the amount to the trustees in bankruptcy whether or not he seeks to receive dividends on the residue if any of his debt. veny, although no doubt between the date of when the scheme was approved and the date when the debtor is re adjudged an insolvent under this section in respect of the law relating to insolvency, is a free man. His legal position is analogous to that of an insolvent who has obtained his discharge, but whose discharge is ultimately cancelled during the period between the date when he obtained his discharge and the date when the discharge is cancelled. In either case during that period the debtor is a person sui juris, but after the acceptance and approval of the scheme the jurisdiction of the Court continues and the scheme when accepted and approved, operates as a conditional discharge and subject to sub section (2) upon annulment and re adjudication the status quo ante is restored. In considering whether it ought to readjudge the debtor under this section the Court in the first instance should have regard to the position of the creditor and if the Court is of opinion that the creditors will not be benefited by an order annulling the scheme and re adjudicating the debtor in ordinary circumstances, the Court will not make an order of re-adjudication. 105 Ind Cas 90=54 C 650. It follows that where a scheme has been approved and subsequently is annulled and the debtor dies after the scheme has been approved and before it is annulled, s. 93 of the Act applies and notwithstanding the death of the debtor any person interested has a locus standi to apply that the debtor be re adjudged an insolvent for the purpose of the further administration in insolvency of the deceased debtor's estate. Ibid. Realisation of Property

55 (1) The Court may, at the time of the order of adjudication, or at any time afterwards, appoint a receiver for the property of the insolvent and such property shall thereupon vest in such receiver.

(2) Subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, the Court may—
(a) require the receiver to give such security as it thinks fit duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the property; and

(b) by general or special order, fix the amount to be paid as remuneration for the services of the receiver out of the assets of the insolvent.

(3) Where the Court appoints a receiver, it may remove the person in whose possession or custody any such property as aforesaid is from the possession or custody thereof.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise the Court to remove from the possession or custody of property any person whom the insolvent has not a present right so to remove.

(4) Where a receiver appointed under this section—
(a) fails to submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs, or

(b) fails to pay the balance due from him thereon as the Court directs; or

(c) occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence, the Court may direct his property to be attached and sold, and may apply the proceeds to make good any balance found to be due from him or any loss so occasioned by him.

(5) The provisions of this section shall apply, so far as may be, to interim receivers appointed under section 20.

Notes.—As regards the status of a receiver, vide 30 C L J 515, 18 C W N 365. The receiver can take possession properties of an insolvent 42 C. 225, 20 M L T 334—35 Ind Cas 610. 57 (1) The Local Government may appoint such persons as it thinks fit (to be called "Official Receivers") to be receivers under this Act within such local limits as it may prescribe.

(2) Where any Official Receiver has been so appointed for the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act, he shall be the receiver for the purposes of every order appointing a receiver or an interim receiver issued by any such Court, unless the Court for special reasons otherwise directs.

(3) Any sum payable under clause (b) of sub section (2) of section 56 in respect of the services of an Official Receiver shall be credited to such fund as the Local Government may direct

(4) Every Official Receiver shall receive such remuneration out of the said fund or otherwise as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, and no remuneration whatever beyond that so fixed shall be received by the Official Receiver as such.

Notes—It is desirable that the Official Receiver should be given the control of all insolvencies in the district unless very exceptional reasons such as those connected with the personality of the receiver, are put forward 46 M 405=44 M. L J 251

Powers of Court if no receiver appointed

58. Where no receiver is appointed, the Court shall have all the rights of, and may exercise all the powers conferred on, a receiver under this Act

Notes—In the absence of a receiver the property vests in the Court 40 A 197=16 A L J. 32; 9 N L R. 182

59 Subject to the provisions of this Act, the receiver shall, with all convenient speed, realise the property of the debtor and distribute dividends among the creditors entitled thereto, and for that purpose may—

- (a) sell all or any part of the property of the insolvent,
- (b) give receipts for any money received by him,
- and may, by leave of the Court, do all or any of the following things, namely —
- (c) carry on the business of the insolvent so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same;

(2) If any person so summoned, after having been tendered a reasonable sum, refuses to come before the Court or such officer at the time appointed, or refuses to produce any such document, having no lawful impediment made known to and allowed by the Court or such officer, the Court or such officer may, by warrant, cause him to be apprehended and brought up for examination

(a) the amount required to satisfy the debts proved under this Act after deducting the monies already received,

(b) the immovable property of the insolvent remaining unsold, and

(c) the incumbrances (if any) existing thereon, and shall forward a statement to the Collector containing the particulars aforesaid, and thereupon the Collector shall proceed to raise the amount so required by the exercise of such of the powers conferred on him by paragraphs 2 to 10 of the Third Schedule to the said Code as he thinks fit, and subject to the provisions of those paragraphs so far as they are applicable, and shall hold at the disposal of the Court all sums that may come to his hands by the exercise of such powers

(2) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect any provisions of any enactment for the time being in force prohibiting or restricting the execution of decrees or orders against immovable property, and any such provisions shall be deemed to apply to the enforcement of an order of adjudication made under this Act as if it were such a decree or order.

61 (1) In the distribution of the property of the insolvent, there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

(a) all debts due to the Crown or to any local authority and

(b) all salary or wages, not exceeding twenty rupees in all of any clerk, servant or labourer in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during four months before the date of the presentation of the petition

(2) The debts specified in sub section (1) shall rank equally between themselves and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the insolvent is insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the expenses of administration or otherwise, the debts specified in sub section (1) shall be discharged forthwith in so far as the property of the insolvent is sufficient to meet them

(4) In the case of partners the partnership property shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of the partnership debts and the separate property of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. Where there is a surplus of the separate property of the partners it shall be dealt with as part of the partnership property and where there is a surplus of the partnership property it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate property in proportion to the rights and interests of each partner in the partnership property

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act, all debts entered in the schedule shall be paid rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference

(6) Where there is any surplus after payment of the foregoing debts it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date on which the debtor is adjudged an insolvent at the rate of six per centum per annum on all debts entered in the schedule

62 (1) In the calculation of dividends, the receiver shall retain in his hands sufficient assets to meet—

(a) debts provable under this Act and appearing from the insolvent's statements or otherwise to be due to persons resident in places so distant that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs

(b) debts provable under this Act, the subject of claims not yet determined,

(c) disputed proofs or claims and

(d) the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or other wise

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub section (1) all money in hand shall be distributed as dividends

Notes—The Code of Civil Procedure does not regulate the payment of dividends and there is accordingly no direct conflict with regard to provision for debts not provable

at once. The principle has already been recognised that a creditor can claim to prove at any time while there are still undistributed assets of the insolvent. It is essential however to qualify this by providing for the maintenance of any prior payment of dividends and also to protect a receiver against suit for dividends unpaid, the Court being at the same time vested with the power to order payment with costs and interest, or interest improperly withheld—Law Member's Note

63 Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being in the hands of the receiver any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein

Notes—This section contemplates payment in full to each succeeding creditor who comes in after the framing of the schedule in the order of the proving of his claim. The receiver is not liable to pay a dividend to a creditor who has not proved his debt before the framing of the schedule. Where a creditor has been framed, he would be caused

64 When the receiver has realised all the property of the insolvent or so much thereof as can, in the opinion of the Court, be realised without needlessly protracting the receivership, he shall declare a final dividend, but before so doing, he shall give notice in manner prescribed to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified but not proved, that if they do not prove their claims within the time limited by the notice he will proceed to make a final dividend without regard to their claims. After the expiration of the time so limited, or if the Court, on application by any such claimant grants him further time for establishing his claim then on the expiration of such further time, the property of the insolvent shall be divided among the creditors entered in the schedule without regard to the claims of any other persons

Notes—Under s 64 of the Act a creditor entered in the schedule is entitled to be paid his dividend out of the assets of the insolvent and the issue of a succession certificate is not necessary for the same. 1926 M W N 560=97 Ind Cas 411=A I R 1026 Mad 899=51 M L J 349. In the absence of notice to the creditor the matter can be reopened by him. 47 M 91=80 Ind Cas 600, but see 100 Ind Cas 791

65 No suit for a dividend shall lie against the receiver, but where the receiver refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, on the application of any creditor who is entered in the schedule, order him to pay it and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld and the costs of the application

66 (1) The Court may appoint the insolvent himself to superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof or to carry on the trade (if any) of the insolvent for the benefit of the creditors and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the Court may direct

67 The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors with interest as provided by this Act, and of the expenses of the proceedings taken thereunder

Notes—An insolvent can assign any prospective surplus that may remain over after his estate has been fully administered in the insolvency, such assignment is of a contingent interest and does not give the assignee the right to intervene until it is ascertained whether or not there is a surplus 73 Ind Cas 379

67A* (1) The Court may, if it thinks fit, authorise the creditors who have proved their debts to appoint a committee of inspection for the purpose of superintending the administration of the insolvent's property by the receiver

(2) The persons appointed to a committee of inspection shall be creditors who have proved their debts or persons holding general powers of attorney from such creditors.

The committee of inspection shall have such powers of control over the proceedings of the receiver as may be prescribed

Appeal to Court against receiver

68. If the insolvent or any of the creditors or any other person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the receiver, he may Appeal to Court against receiver, apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order as it thinks just

Provided that no application under this section shall be entertained after the expiration of twenty one days from the date of the act or decision complained of

Notes—This section provides a speedy remedy to which recourse can be had if the person agrees to seek it. But it is not the only remedy open to him if he seeks the remedy mentioned there, he must come within the time fixed 21 A L J 737 = L R 4A 483 = 1921 A 40. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE

17. (1) "The procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall, save in so far as otherwise provided by that Code or by this Act,"* be the procedure followed in a Court of Small Causes in all suits cognizable by the Court. If the plaintiff fails to pass his application, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or in pursuance of the judgment, or give security to the satisfaction of the Court for the performance of the decree or compliance with the judgment, as the Court may direct

(2) Where a person has become liable as surety under the proviso to sub-section (1), the security may be realized in manner provided by section 145 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908†.

8 A railway administration may, for the purpose of exercising the powers conferred upon it by this Act, alter the position of any pipe for the supply of gas, water or compressed air or the position of any electric wire or of any drain not being a main drain -

Provided that—

(a) when the railway administration desires to alter the position of any such pipe wire or drain, it shall give reasonable notice of its intention to do so, and of the time at which it will begin to do so, to the local authority or company having control over the pipe, wire or drain, or, when the pipe, wire or drain is not under the control of a local authority or company, to the person under whose control the pipe, wire or drain is,

(b) a local authority, company or person receiving notice under proviso (a) may send a person to superintend the work, and the railway administration shall execute the work to the reasonable satisfaction of the person so sent and shall make arrangements for continuing during the execution of the work the supply of gas, water, compressed air or electricity or the maintenance of the drainage, as the case may be

9 (1) The Governor General in Council may authorize any railway administration, in case of any slip or other accident happening or being apprehended to any cutting, embankment or other work under the control of the railway administration to enter upon any lands adjoining its railway for the purpose of repairing or preventing the accident, and to do all such works as may be necessary for the purpose

(2) In case of necessity the railway administration may enter upon the lands and do the works aforesaid without having obtained the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council but in such a case shall, within seventy-two hours after such entry make a report to the Governor General in Council, specifying the nature of the accident or apprehended accident, and of the works necessary to be done and the power conferred on the railway administration by this subsection shall cease and determine if the Governor General in Council, after considering the report, considers that the exercise of the power is not necessary for the public safety

Notes—Section 10 of the Railways Act can only be applicable to damage which is the result of the exercise of the powers conferred by ss 8 and 9 and which can be seen 2 Bom L R 357

Payment of compensation for damage caused by lawful exercise of powers under section 7, 8 or 9

10 (1) A railway administration shall do as little damage as possible in the exercise of the powers conferred by any of the three last foregoing sections, and compensation shall be paid for any damage caused by the exercise thereof

(2) A suit shall not lie to recover such compensation but in case of dispute the amount thereof shall, on application to the Collector, be determined and paid in accordance, so far as may be "with the provisions of sections 11 to 15, both inclusive, sections 18 to 34 both inclusive, and sections 53 and 54 of the Land Acquisition Act 1894 and the provisions of sections 51 and 52 of that Act, shall apply to the award of compensation"

Notes—This section can only be applicable to damage which is the result of the exercise of the powers conferred by ss 7 8 and 9 and which can be foreseen 2 Bom L R 357

11 (1) A railway administration shall make and maintain the following works for the accommodation of the owners and occupiers of lands adjoining the railway, namely:—

(a) such and so many convenient crossings, bridges, arches, culverts and passages over, under or by the sides of, or leading to or from the railway as may, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, be necessary for the purpose of making good any interruptions caused by the railway to the use of the lands through which the railway is made, and

(b) all necessary arches tunnels culverts, drains, watercourses or other passages over or under or by the sides of the railway, of such dimensions as will, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, be sufficient at all times to convey water as freely from or to the lands lying near or affected by the railway as before the making of the railway or as nearly so as may be

(2) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, the work specified in clauses (a) and (b) of sub section (1) shall be made during or immediately after the laying out or formation of the railway over the lands traversed thereby and in such manner as to cause as little damage or inconvenience as possible to persons interested in the lands or affected by the works

(3) The foregoing provisions of this section are subject to the following provisos, namely —

(a) a railway administration shall not be required to make any accommodation works in such a manner as would prevent or obstruct the working or using of the railway, or to make any accommodation works with respect to which the owners and occupiers of the lands have agreed to receive and have been paid compensation in consideration of their not requiring the works to be made,

(b) save as hereinafter in this Chapter provided, a railway administration shall not, except on the requisition of the Governor General in Council, be compelled to defray the cost of executing any further or additional accommodation works for the use of the owners or occupiers of the lands after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the railway passing through the lands was first opened for public traffic,

(c) where a railway administration has provided suitable accommodation for the crossing of a road or stream, and the road or stream is afterwards diverted by the act or neglect of the person having the control thereof the administration shall not be compelled to provide other accommodation for the crossing of the road or stream

(4) The Governor General in Council may appoint a time for the commencement of any work to be executed under sub section (1), and if for fourteen days next after that time, the railway administration fails to commence the work or, having commenced it fails to proceed diligently to execute it in a sufficient manner, the Governor General, in Council may execute it and recover from the railway administration the cost incurred by him in the execution thereof

Notes—From the wording of this section it is evident that the Indian Railways Act makes it clear that the Indian Legislature intended that the opinion of the executor with reference to the sufficiency of accommodation works, should be final. 25 M 632 Under this section, the purpose for which the accommodation works are to be constructed is to convey water as freely as before from or to certain lands and the aggrieved person is the owner of these lands 2 Bom L. R. 337

12 If an owner or occupier of any land affected by a railway considers the works made under the last foregoing section to be insufficient for the commodious use of the land, or if the Local Government or a local authority desires to construct a public road or other work across, under or over a railway, he

Power for owner occupier or local authority to cause additional accommodation works to be made

or it, as the case may be, may at any time require the railway administration to make at his or its expense such further accommodation works as he or it thinks necessary and are agreed to by the railway administration or as, in case of difference of opinion, may be authorized by the Governor General in Council

Notes—Lands required for the purpose of such works are lands required for the purpose of the Railway (1868) 3 Ch App 745, (1882) 20 Ch D 323

13 The Governor General in Council may require that, within a time to be specified in the requisition, or within such further time as he may appoint in this behalf,— Fences, screens, gates and bars

(a) boundary marks or fences be provided or renewed by a railway administration for a railway or any part thereof and for roads constructed in connection therewith,

(b) any works in the nature of a screen near to or adjoining the side of any public road constructed before the making of a railway be provided or renewed for the purpose of preventing danger to passengers and animals being frightened by the railway, and hand rails be erected or renewed wherever a railway crosses a public road on the level;

(c) persons be employed by a railway administration to open and shut such gates, chains or bars

Notes—These obligations to erect gates and to provide for persons to look after them, do not apply to a private railway on private property used for the owner's own purposes and not for the carriage of passengers Matson v Baird, (1878) 3 App Cas 1082

14 (1) Where a railway administration has constructed a railway across a road, over and under a bridge, if it is necessary for the public to use the road, the railway administration may, at any time as he thinks fit, execute such other works as may appear to the Governor General in Council to be best adapted for removing or diminishing the danger arising from the level crossing

(2) The Governor General in Council may require as a condition of making a requisition under subsection (1), that the local authority, if any, which maintains the road, shall undertake to pay the whole of the cost to the railway administration of complying with the requisition or such portion of the cost as the Governor General in Council thinks just

Notes—'Public road' includes all roads in which the public have a legal right to use at the date when the bridge was constructed (1909) A C 138 Where the company has power to cross a road on the level such power is premissible only, and it may if it chooses, cross under or over the road by means of a bridge (1846) 10 Beav 238

Removal of trees dangerous to or obstructing the working of a railway

15 (1) In either of the following cases, namely,—

(a) where there is danger that a tree standing near a railway may fall on the railway so as to obstruct traffic

(b) when a tree obstructs the view of any fixed signal, the railway administration may, with the permission of any Magistrate, fell the tree or deal with it in such other manner as will in the opinion of the railway administration avert the danger or remove the obstruction as the case may be

(2) In case of emergency the power mentioned in sub-section (1) may be exercised by a railway administration without the permission of a Magistrate.

(3) Where a tree felled or otherwise dealt with under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) was in existence before the railway was constructed or the signal was fixed any Magistrate may upon the application of the persons interested in the tree, award to those persons such compensation as he thinks reasonable

(4) Such an award subject, where made in a presidency town by any Magistrate other than the Chief Presidency Magistrate or, where made elsewhere by any Magistrate other than the District Magistrate to revision by the Chief Presidency Magistrate, or the District Magistrate as the case may be, shall be final

(5) A Civil Court shall not entertain a suit to recover compensation for any tree felled or otherwise dealt with under this section

Notes—This section corresponds to s. 24 of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 119)

CHAPTER IV

OPENING OF RAILWAYS.

16 (1) A railway administration may with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council use upon a railway locomotive engines or other motive power and rolling stock to be drawn or propelled thereby

(2) But rolling stock shall not be moved upon a railway by steam or other motive power until such general rules for the railway as may be deemed to be necessary have been made, sanctioned and published under this Act

17 (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), a railway administration shall, one month at least before it intends to open any railway for the public carriage of passengers give to the Governor General in Council notice in writing of its intention

(2) The Governor General in Council may, in any case, if he thinks fit, reduce the period of, or dispense with, the notice mentioned in sub-section (1)

Notes—A line on the land of the company and parallel to an existing line is a "portion of a railway" and can not be opened without notice A G v Great Western Railway Co., (1872) 7 Ch App 767

18 A railway shall not be opened for the carriage of passengers unless sanctioned by the Governor General in Council in this behalf, and by order sanctioned on condition precedent to the opening of a railway the opening thereof for that purpose

Notes—Where a company had power to make a double line and opened the down line with the sanction of the Board, it was held that the Board was not by such sanction fun tus officio and could refuse to sanction the opening of the up line A G v Oxford etc., (1854) 2 W R 330

19 (1) The sanction of the Governor General in Council under the last foregoing section shall not be given unless the Director has after consulting the Board of Directors and the Board of Directors has after consulting the Board of Directors, recommended in writing to the Governor General in Council—

(a) the railway and rolling-stock, prescribed by the Governor

(c) that the weight of rails strength of bridges general structural character of the works and the size of and maximum gross load upon the axles of any rolling stock are such as have been prescribed by the Governor General in Council,

(d) that the railway is sufficiently supplied with rolling stock,

(e) that general rules for the working of the railway when opened for the public carriage of passengers have been made, sanctioned and published under this Act, and

(f) that, in his opinion the railway can be opened for the public carriage of passengers without danger to the public using it

(2) If in the opinion of the Inspector the railway cannot be so opened without danger to the public using it he shall state that opinion, together with the grounds therefor to the Governor General in Council, and the Governor General in Council may thereupon order the railway administration to postpone the opening of the railway

(3) An order under the last foregoing sub section must set forth the requirements to be complied with as a condition precedent to the opening of the railway being sanctioned and shall direct the postponement of the opening of the railway until those requirements have been complied with or the Governor-General in Council is otherwise satisfied that the railway can be opened without danger to the public using it

(4) The sanction given under this section may be either absolute or subject to such conditions as the Governor General in Council thinks necessary for the safety of the public

(5) When sanction for the opening of a railway is given subject to conditions and the railway administration fails to fulfil those conditions the sanction shall be deemed to be void and the railway shall not be worked or used until the conditions are fulfilled to the satisfaction of the Governor General in Council

Notes—The Governor General in Council is not bound by the report of the Inspector but has absolute discretion as regards passing an order under this section 4 Ch D 735, 2 W R (1854) 330

20 (1) The provisions of sections 17, 18 and 19, with respect to the opening of a railway shall extend to the opening of the works mentioned in sub section (a) when those works form part of, or are directly connected with a railway used for the public carriage of passengers and have been constructed after the inspection which preceded the first opening of the railway

(a) The works referred to in sub-section (1) are additional lines of railway, deviation lines stations junctions and crossings on the level and any alteration or re construction materially affecting the structural character of any work to which the provisions of sections 17, 18 and 19 apply or are extended by this section

Notes—In case of a material alteration, the provisions of ss 17 18 and 19 would apply Vide also (1872) 7 Ch App 767, (1854) 2 W R 330

21 When an accident has occurred resulting in a temporary suspension of traffic and either the original line and works have been rapidly restored to their original standard, or a temporary diversion has been laid for the purpose of restoring communication the original line and works so restored, or the temporary diversion as the case may be may in the absence of the Inspector be opened for the public carriage of passengers, subject to the following conditions namely—

(a) that the railway servant in charge of the works undertaken by reason of the accident has certified in writing that the opening of the restored line and

works, or of the temporary diversion will not in his opinion be attended with danger to the public using the line and works or the diversion, and

(b) that notice by telegraph of the opening of the line and works or the diversion shall be sent, as soon as may be, to the Inspector appointed for the railway

22 The Governor General in Council may make rules defining the cases in which and in those cases the extent to which, the procedure prescribed in sections 17 to 20 (both inclusive) may be dispensed with

Power to make rules with respect to the opening of railway

23 (1) When after inspecting any open railway used for the public carriage of passengers, or any rolling stock used thereon an Inspector is of opinion that the use of the railway or of any specified rolling stock will be attended with danger to the public using it, he shall state that opinion together with the grounds therefor, to the Governor General in Council, and the Governor General in Council may thereupon order that the railway be closed for the public carriage of passengers or that the use of the rolling stock so specified be discontinued, or that the railway or the rolling stock so specified be used for the public carriage of passengers on such conditions only as the Governor General in Council may consider necessary for the safety of the public

(2) An order under sub section (1) must set forth the grounds on which it is founded,

Notes—Vide A G Great Western Railway Co (1877) 4 Ch D 735 C A

24 (1) When a railway has been closed under the last foregoing section it shall not be re opened for the public carriage of passengers until it has been inspected and its re opening sanctioned, in accordance with the provisions of this Act

Re opening of a closed railway

(2) When the Governor General in Council has ordered under the last foregoing section that the use of any rolling stock be discontinued, the Inspector has reported that it is fit to be sanctioned its use

(3) When the Governor General in Council has imposed under the last foregoing section any conditions with respect to the use of any railway or rolling stock those conditions shall be observed until they are withdrawn by the Governor General in Council

25 (1) The Governor General in Council may, by general or special order, authorize the discharge of any of his functions under this Chapter by an Inspector, and may cancel any sanction or order given by an Inspector discharging any such function or attach thereto any condition which the Governor General in Council might have imposed if the sanction or order has been given by himself.

Traffic Facilities

Duty of railway administrations to arrange for receiving and forwarding traffic without unreasonable delay and without partiality

42 (1) Every railway administration shall, according to its powers afford all reasonable facilities for the receiving forwarding and delivering of traffic upon and from the several railways belonging to or worked by it and for the return of rolling stock

(2) A railway administration shall not make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to or in favour of any particular person or railway administration, or any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person or railway administration or any particular description of traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever

ing railways which form part of having its terminus or station nother railway administration, receiving and forwarding by one er at such terminus or station, such preference or advantage that no obstruction may be offered to the public desirous of using such railways as a continuous line of communication, and so that all reasonable accommodation may by means of such railways be at all times afforded to the public in that behalf

(4) The facilities to be afforded under this section shall include the due and reasonable receiving forwarding and delivering by every railway administration at the request of any other railway administration, of through traffic to and from the railway or any other railway administration at through rates

Provided as follows —

(a) the railway administration requiring the traffic to be forwarded shall give written notice of the proposed through rate to each forwarding railway administration, stating both its amount and its apportionment, and the route by which the traffic is proposed to be forwarded. The proposed through rate for animals or goods may be per truck or per maund,

(b) each forwarding railway administration shall, within the prescribed period after the receipt of such notice, by written notice inform the railway administration requiring the traffic to be forwarded whether it agrees to the rate, apportionment and route, and, if it has any objection, what the grounds of the objection are,

(c) if at the expiration of the prescribed period no such objection has been sent by any forwarding railway administration, the rate shall come into operation at the expiration of that period,

(d) if an objection to the rate, apportionment or route has been sent within the prescribed period, the Governor General in Council may, if he thinks fit, on the request of any of the railway administrations, refer the case to the Commissioners for their decision,

(f) if the objection is only to the apportionment of the rate, and the case has been referred to the Commissioners, the rate shall come into operation at the expiration of the prescribed period, but the decision of the Commissioners shall be retrospective in the case of any other objection. The rate shall be suspended until the Commissioners make their order in the case,

Undue preference in case of unequal rates for like traffic for services or does not amount to an as they think reasonable, in case, take into consideration whether such lower charge is necessary for the purpose of securing, in the interests of the public, the traffic in respect of which it is made

Notes—In cases of lower rates for a particular trade the burden of proof lies on the railway administration that such rates are not due to undue preference

44 Where a railway administration is a party to an agreement for procuring the traffic of the railway to be carried on any inland water by any ferry, ship, boat or raft which does not belong to or is not hired or worked by the railway administration, the provisions of the two last foregoing sections applicable to a railway shall extend to the ferry, ship, boat or raft in so far as it is used for the purposes of the traffic of the railway.

Terminals

45 A railway administration may charge reasonable terminals

46 (1) The Governor General in Council may, if he thinks fit, refer to the Commissioners for decision, any question or dispute which may arise with respect to the terminals charged by a railway administration, and the Commissioners may thereupon decide what is a reasonable sum to be paid to the railway administration respect of which the terminals are charged, irrespective of the outlay which may have been actually incurred by the railway administration in providing that accommodation.

CHAPTER VI

General

47 (1) Every railway company and, in the case of a railway administered by the Government, an officer to be appointed by the Governor General in Council in this behalf, shall make general rules consistent with this Act for the following purposes, namely—

(a) for regulating the mode in which, and the speed at which, rolling stock used on the railway is to be moved or propelled ,
 (b) for providing for the accommodation and convenience of passengers luggage , deemed to be, for the purposes of this

Rules—Rules which are not ultra vires, although not framed under this section must be obeyed by the Railway servants 12 Bom L R 930

Scope—This section does not create any criminal offence. It merely gives to the company power to frame rules and to enforce them by imposing fines on its own officers 11 C W N 583=5 Cr L J 463. The general rules framed by the Governor General in Council and published in the Gazette of India by notification dated the 3rd July, 1907 do not become operative as the rules of an individual Railway company, merely upon their adoption by the company. It must be shown that the particular Railway company made rules and that those rules have received the sanction of the Governor General in Council and have been published in the manner prescribed by the Act 15 C W N 195. The provision in s 74 that the interval between the time of issue of a return ticket and the midnight of the same day shall be counted as one day, is neither unrecoverable nor ultra vires 8 S L R 14

RESPONSIBILITY OF RAILWAY ADMINISTRATIONS AS CARRIERS

72 (1) The responsibility of a railway administration for the loss, destruction or deterioration of animals or goods delivered to the administration to be carried by railway shall, subject to the other provisions of this Act, be that of a bailee under sections 151 and 161 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872

(2) An agreement purporting to limit that responsibility shall, in so far as it purports to affect such limitation, be void, unless it—

(a) is in writing signed by or on behalf of the person sending or delivering to the railway administration the animals or goods, and

(b) is otherwise in a form approved

(3) Nothing in the Common Law regarding the responsibility of common animals or goods, shall affect the responsibility as in this section defined of a railway administration

Notes—A horse carried by the defendant Railway Company was injured on the journey. The horse was not carried at the owner's risk nor was it a bailee under section 151 of the Contract Act. The burden would only be discharged by proof that the horse box was in all respects sufficiently fitted, and adequately secured, and that on the journey such precautions as ordinary prudence dictates were taken by the Company's servants. The burden of proof cannot be affected by the fact that the plaintiff had put forward and failed to make good, a theory of his own to account for the accident. 3 N L R 93. Where a special agreement otherwise known as a 'risk note-form' is sanctioned by the Governor General in Council under clause 2 of this section, was given by a consignor of goods with a Railway Company, the Company was exempt from all liability for loss occasioned by any cause whatsoever, the reason being that the company is not, in such cases, a bailee within the meaning of ss 152, 30 C 257=7 C W N 370. The intention of the legislature in enacting would appear to have been to define the liability of carriers by Railway as identical with that of bailees in ss 152 and 161 of the Contract Act 97 P R 1886, see also 27 C W N 1017, 1923 Nag 174. Where a large quantity of goods of the same description are delivered to a carrier his
